

TO OUST WATER BOARD

MOVE OF ALD. BARRETT CHINESE TROOPS

ROBERT W. VANTASSELL

JAMES McDOWELL

JAMES G. HILL

JAMES P. FURLONG

At the Aldermen's Meeting--Hearing on Andover Street Car Lines

Starting out quietly with only a comparatively calm hearing on a street railroad matter to engage their attention, the board of aldermen wound up their meeting with one of the biggest surprises of the year before them for their consideration, for the hearing on the Andover street car service had hardly closed when Alderman Andrew E. Barrett threw a bombshell into the board by making an attack on the water board, in the course of which he introduced a motion requesting the mayor to ask for the resignations of the members of the water board, stating that in the event of this going through he would introduce an order for a competent commission to state just what could be done to give the citizens of Lowell a good water supply.

Before the members of the board could recover from their surprise, Alderman Barrett called for their views on the matter. Some spoke, while the others were not prepared to express themselves at that time. Alderman Gallagher asked that the water board be given a chance to spend the grounding that a special meeting will be held next Tuesday evening when the members of the water board will appear before the board and explain their position.

Alderman Barrett throughout his remarks endeavored to impress the members of the board with the fact that his remarks were purely impersonal and were aimed at the water board as a department of the city and not at any individual.

The hearing and the water board matter kept the board in session until nearly midnight and then adjourned without taking any action on the contest for city messenger.

In the street railway matter the board realizing that it had power only to recommend, appointed a committee to consult with the street railway authorities relative to a betterment of conditions.

The Railway Hearing

The board came to order at 8.35, and the first business was the hearing on the resolution relative to the granting of transfers on the Andover street line as far as the end of the line.

Alderman Rountree, who introduced the resolution, was the first speaker, and he stated that as he lived in that particular district he had heard numerous complaints not only as to poor accommodations on that line but in the matter of transfers, the transfers at present being good only as far as the blacksmith shop in Andover street, those who desired to ride to the end of the line, a comparatively short distance away, being compelled to pay another fare. He believed also that the public would be greatly accommodated if the cars were run on 20-minute time.

School Children Affected

Rev. Mr. Bishop of Tewksbury and Prof. Hugh J. Molloy of the Normal school appeared in behalf of the children and students attending schools in Lowell. Tewksbury children coming to Lowell to school are obliged to pay two fares. Sgt. Chase of the Tewksbury schools considered the extra fare one of the meanest impositions he had ever known. He said he would see the company bankrupt before he would pay the extra nickel. Thomas Murphy, A. M. Burns and Mr. Fleming protested against the extra fare. Deputy Sheriff Clark objected to the slowness of the line, stating that he had to go half an hour ahead of time to catch a train for Boston.

Mr. Caldwell kicked on the uncleanliness of the little waiting station at the end of the line.

A Banana Line

Charles Stickney characterized the line as a "banana line" running in bunches. He also suggested that the Church street line be extended to the Andover street line.

Board of Trade

Secretary John H. Murphy of the board of trade stated that many complaints had been registered with him and with the members of the executive committee about the poor service on the line and also about the transfer limit.

George Lynch Protests

Mr. George Lynch, a well known resident of Tewksbury, protested against the transfer limit and said the condition of the cars is such that they would not be tolerated on any other line. It takes seven minutes to make the run from the square to the terminus of the line, the shortest run in the city. The fare money is asked for from those who hold transfers and is collected only a very short time before the terminus is reached. The run is so short that the car is held up at the terminus several minutes in order to maintain schedule time into the square.

Would Build Up

John Robertson said that if better car service were maintained and if better cars were put in commission, North Tewksbury would very soon build up. It is to the interest of the Bay State Street Railway Co. to make traveling on the line more attractive.

The Company's Side

Fred N. Wier, representing the Bay State Street railway, said that the company always welcomed such discussions, because it is a public service corporation and therefore desired to know what the public wanted. The matter would more properly be referred to the selection of Tewksbury, he said, inasmuch as the transfer from the city end of the line carries the passenger 150 feet over the line into the town of Tewksbury. As to the irregularity with which the cars have been run, he understood that the schedule time is generally well maintained. What break in the service there is due, he believed, to the interruptions caused by the paving in East Merrimack street. Mr. Wier said the company would look into the matter and see what could be done to remedy the defects, if possible.

Mr. Wier suggested that the board had no power except to recommend. Chairman Gallagher read the law governing the operation of street railways in Massachusetts and then the hearing was declared closed.

Later in the meeting the resolution introduced by Alderman Rountree came up for action.

Mr. Connors suggested that a committee appointed by the chair might interview the street railway officials on the matter and report back to the board. This was later framed in a motion, which was passed, Messrs. Rountree, Flanagan and Daly were named on the committee.

Routine Business

Chairman Gallagher read a communication from John H. Murphy, of the board of trade, relative to chapter 200 of the acts of 1911, an act relative to the preparation and opening of public travel and ways in the city of Lowell. A hearing on the same was set for the next meeting.

THE SUPERIOR COURT

Suit Against the Belvidere Woolen Mfg. Co. on Trial

The case of Brooks vs. Boston & Northern Street Railway Co., in an action of tort for alleged injuries received by the plaintiff while riding on a car of the defendant company, came to a close yesterday afternoon in superior court, when Judge King ordered a verdict in favor of the defendant company, the said case to be reported to the supreme court.

Two cases of Taylor vs. Belvidere Woolen Manufacturing Co. were then opened for trial together. The two cases grow out of the same accident. William A. Taylor, the plaintiff, claims that on November 11, 1909, he was working for the defendant company, and while cleaning out a picker, his right arm was caught in the machine and torn off above the elbow. Negligence and defective machinery are alleged, the plaintiff claiming that because of its defect, the machine started of its own accord, while he was engaged in cleaning it out. Special damages are claimed on the ground that the plaintiff was a musician and was intending to make music his profession, being somewhat skilled as a pianist.

The second suit is brought by the father, Eugene Taylor, to recover for loss of his son's services. Francis W. and Stanley E. Qua for the plaintiff; F. E. Dunbar, John J. Rogers and Arthur C. Spaulding for the defendant.

WATER BOARD OFFICE

Wore a Tranquil Air This Morning

Peace reigned in the water board office at city hall this morning when a reporter of The Sun entered, despite the ominous happenings of the evening before. There were present with Supt. Thomas, James G. Hill of the water board and Alderman Gallagher.

The only reference made to last evening's matter was a question by Alderman Gallagher, who asked if complaints were still coming in about the condition of the water.

Superintendent Thomas replied that the complaints had dwindled down to practically none at the present time, as the condition of the water has greatly improved.

Supt. Thomas also announced that the time for figuring on the plans of the new boulevard pumping station had been extended at the request of the contractors and hence the contract will not be awarded at tonight's meeting of the board.

"Is that the $14,000 building referred to by Alderman Barrett last night?" asked a reporter who was present. "That's the new pumping station on the boulevard," replied Supt. Thomas. "We can't tell how much it will cost until we see the bids. It may not cost $14,000."

The water department is now waiting for the pipes with which to sink some 200 new wells at the boulevard on land recently acquired. This new land was tested before it was purchased by the city and was found to be productive of a good quality of water. This new land is on the north side of the boulevard or for those who are not familiar with the points of the compass, the inside or Varnum avenue side. It is some 500 feet farther away from the river than the site of the present wells and the water contains no iron. When the original boulevard wells were sunk close to the river it was found that some 10 of them contained considerable iron. The first boulevard wells were sunk in 1896. Some of them are in commission yet while others were recently abandoned, having outlived their usefulness.

Tonight's meeting of the board, while it was not so announced, will probably be given up to a discussion of Alderman Barrett's remarks at last evening's meeting of the board of aldermen.

BEATEN BY A MOB

in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Harry Gray, a diminutive negro, member of the vaudeville team of Gray and Smith, started one of the most alarming race riots in Harlem last night that section has seen for a long time. The outcome was that Gray was terribly beaten by a mob, and surrounded by police, he was escorted to the station house in a junk wagon which the police pressed into service.

Charles H. Kroner of 289 West 142d street, and Fred Miller of 229 West 141st street, were coming down Eighth avenue about 8:30 o'clock. At 142d street Kroner started to enter a store to use a telephone. Kroner is six feet tall. He ran into Gray, who is about five feet.

Gray abused Kroner and attacked him. He sent the big man reeling with the suddenness of his onslaught. When Kroner recovered, he started after Gray. The latter turned and fired at him. The bullet went through one of Kroner's trousers legs and he tripped and went down.

A crowd that had been attracted joined in the chase, shouting that Gray had killed a white man. Gray, with the crowd in pursuit, ran to 141st street and turned east. Kroner, who it was supposed had been killed, had joined in the chase.

Both jumped for the street. Goldstein with the father on his face, Gray had fired again and the policemen took a couple of shots at him.

At Seventh avenue they overhauled

him, and he tried to use his revolver on Goldstein. He was overpowered, but the crowd became so menacing the police could do nothing.

A dozen men hit Gray and struck the police, trying to tear the negro from them. Telephone calls were sent to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and the One Hundred and Fifty-second street police stations for patrol wagons. In both stations the wagons were put.

At this juncture several automobiles were appealed to by the police to hurry and get policemen. The two officers backed Gray against the wall of the Church of St. Charles of Borromeo, while autos screeled up and down Seventh avenue. The automobiles soon brought a dozen policemen. The crowd by this time had grown to such proportions that the streets were impassable. A junk wagon was commandeered and the prisoner, cut and bleeding, was placed in it. Guarded by police and followed by a mob shouting, "Kill him! Kill him!" the wagon was driven to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station.

All Gray had to say was: "They tried to do me." He was locked up on charges of felonious assault and carrying concealed weapons.

Gray and Smith have been in vaudeville for several years. They have played in this country and in the music halls of England.

desertion and demanding the absolute custody of the only child was filed yesterday in this city by De Forest's attorney.

It is alleged in the complaint that Mrs. De Forest deserted her husband more than a year ago and has ever since refused to return to him. This document is devoted to explaining to the court reasons why the little girl should be given to the father in case the divorce should be granted.

Mrs. De Forest is declared to be unable to bring up the child. The mother, according to the complaint, "devotes her time exclusively to the practice of her profession of civil engineering and to militantly advocating the cause of woman's suffrage."

The little daughter, whose first utterances were "Votes for women" and "Hurray for suffrage," is declared to be neglected by its mother. On Sunday, the inventor explains in his suit, Mrs. De Forest, instead of staying home and attending to her child, spends the day attending suffragette meetings in New York and surrounding cities.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Last night one of the most artistic dramatic attractions that has been seen at the Opera House for more than a year was "The Spendthrift," a play in four acts. The play illustrates Uncle New York in the fashionable section where all kinds of extravagance are indulged in by people who are simply able to afford every kind of luxury as well as many not so wealthy. The principal character, Richard Ward, a gentleman of large earning capacity, was married to one of the most beautiful women in New York, both in face and figure, and he certainly adored her. It must have been wholly for her charming appearance for she certainly had no other real qualifications, as she had not the slightest conception of what the duties of a wife should be, for judgment from her extravagant habits her chief enjoyment was in contracting large bills. No idea of self-control ever entered her mind. There were characters portraying also the power of money, and its value when used in moderation. One such role was portrayed by an aunt of the spendthrift, Gretchen Jans, who was a very prudent woman, and this old lady would remind one of the character of Betty Green, and the advice she gave to her extravagant wife, her niece, was certainly something that would set anyone to thinking. The inevitable had to come and there was a job for the sheriff. The wife, after being informed that the household goods were no longer her property, could not understand how such a thing could be. She was so used to having everything for a swell party in take place that evening, but in her desperation she went out and from some friend unknown to her husband had borrowed the $20,000 that it would take to put off the disaster. She returned with the money, greatly to the surprise, repenting that the frugal old aunt had hoarded the money. The husband, knowing of her very careful habits of loaning money to anybody at once suspected, and it happened that by chance or accident the aunt called at his home, and Richard thanked her for her generous loan which lifted him out of his terrible dilemma. She could not understand what he meant, but said that she had not loaned any money. The husband then knowing that it came from some other source forced his wife to tell. She had to admit that the money was loaned her by a young millionaire of questionable reputation, which aroused the husband's rage to think she had thus bartered her honor to a man of world. The strongest kind of a climax was here presented. The final scene showed a separation. The wife had gone out into the world and for five months lived in almost abject poverty, doing nurse work or anything she might find, shifting from her place to quarters in a garret in a poor section of the city. This is but a brief outline of the plot and the lesson that it teaches, and was listened to most attentively, and at the end of each act curtain calls were insisted upon, and were well deserved.

It does seem strange that when such a star attraction comes here that the Opera House should not be packed. The play last evening certainly deserved a full house, whereas there were many vacant seats.

The play will be repeated this evening. It is one of the strongest seen in the city for a considerable time, and the company is first class at every particular.

The cast is as follows:
Richard Ward Lionel Adams
Philip Cartwright Edwin Holland
Monty Ward, Richard's father, Sumner Gard
Frances Ward, Richard's wife, Thais Magrane
Clarice Van Zandt, her sister, Alice Kelly
Gretchen Jans, their aunt, Mattie Ferguson
Elsie, Frances' maid, Eleanor Woodruff
Sufferen Thora Guy D'Emery

"THE BEAUTY SPOT"
The musical play by De Koven and Herbert, entitled "The Beauty Spot," which comes to the Opera House, Oct. 24th, is said to be a production above the average, its music being of a higher order.

The cast is headed by the sterling actor and comedian, Frank Deshon, whose strength lies not altogether in the material furnished him by the authors but what he interjects into the piece from his own personality. His role of the richly old Russian general is characteristic, his make-up being highly ludicrous and mirth provoking.

Mr. Deshon is ably supported by a company of well known people. The two scenes are said to be handsome, unique in idea and beautiful to the eye.

"THE GAMBLERS"

Preparations are being made for the local appearance of "The Gamblers," which is to be seen here at the Opera House immediately following the Boston engagement of this company. Already the local management has received many applications for seat reservations and indications point to a record breaking attendance here for this attraction.

GERTRUDE BENNYSON COMING
Friends of the distinguished American soprano will be pleased to learn that arrangements have been completed for the appearance here at the Opera House of this talented singer. Miss Bennyson will appear here on Friday, Nov. 17th.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

The old time minstrels have got the town, likewise a few of our present time who are with the bunch. "Where have I seen that face before," and "Where have I heard that voice before" have frequently been asked after Peter J. McLaughlin has rendered his songs in the minstrel first part. Last evening on a rainy day at Spaulding park seen a gigantic figure arrayed in a mask and protector face the hooting mob and high above the roar of battle cry out: "The Bat-ter-i-e-s for today a-r-e." Why, sure enough, that's Pete McLaughlin, the ex-New England League umpire, and he has it on the crowd at Keith's this week for they can't call him a robber without getting put out and they wouldn't anyway for he is making a hit with his sweet voice. The minstrel bill includes a whole galaxy of stars, including Dan Flaley, Low Benedet, Tom Clifford, who was critical Boston's favorite baritone for over a score of years; Dan Flaley, Bob Evans, Billy Elliott, Thomas E. Quinn and others in a first part and afterpiece. The bill includes four fine vaudeville acts including Isabel D'Armand, a reigning Boston favorite with Frank Carter in a musical act including eccentric dancing entitled "Jolly Jinks," Sally and Muzzy, a couple of "Cha, Cha" boys, have a most laughable time with the audience, while the Mozarts offer a unique and most interesting act in a scene laid in the frozen north. The pictures are up to the minute showing scenes of the opening game of the world's series. Miss Shumko, direct from the Imperial Tokio theatre with her geisha suite, will head next week's bill. Seats for coming performances may be ordered in advance by telephone 25.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Several men, well known in labor circles, were in the audience at the Hathaway theatre last evening at the performance of David Belasco's great drama of capital and labor, and they were most enthusiastic over what they saw and heard. To place such a subject before the public in the form of a play and make it entertaining without offending either side of the great social problem requires most careful study and discrimination, together with a strict adherence to facts in describing conditions. Belasco has done all this to perfection in "The Lost Paradise," and his play leaves all feeling better for having witnessed a performance. The play is being excellently presented by the Donald Meek stock company. The part most likely to be overdone or cause adverse criticism, that of Schwartz, the fiery workman who promotes the strike, has been taken by Mr. Meek himself, and while his time on the stage is short he has much to say in that short time and he does the character in faultless manner. Those who expected to find Mr. Meek in a comedy role experienced a surprise akin to a positive shock upon hearing him as the worthy Schwartz, but whatever the nature of the part Mr. Meek may be depended upon to do it justice. Mr. Jack Chapman gives a fine interpretation of Reuben Warner, the factory foreman, while Miss Marie Horton is charming in the role of the factory owner's daughter, Miss Marcia Williams as Nell, the lame factory girl, secretly in love with Warner, interprets an important emotional role in a most artistic manner. Seats may be ordered in advance by telephone for the remaining performances. Next week the Donald Meek stock company will present "The County Chairman."

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

If it's variety you're after, you'll find it at the Merrimack Square theatre. If it's high class entertainment you like, it's at the Merrimack Square theatre. If it's all that's best in vaudeville and photo-plays your wants will be satisfied at the Merrimack Square theatre. Heading the list of novel amusement this week is Captain Pickard's troupe of trained sea lions. There are five animals in the troupe and the various feats which they perform are especially entertaining.

Kendall Weston, Miss Constance Jackson, Stanley Wood and John J. Quinn, members of Our Stock company, are meeting with unqualified success this week in the presentation of that popular dramatic offering, "My Emperor." Mr. Quinn, a Lowell boy, portrays the character of the great Napoleon in a very clever style. The singing of the piece is excellently done. Hammond and Forrester, and Freeman and Carr contribute their share to the week's bill. Miss Beatrice Savill gives a delightful talk on "Jamaica," and during the last three days of the week her subject will be "Canada." On Friday night the Merrimack Square Theatre Concert orchestra will feature selections from the favorite opera "Faust."

SHOT BY A FRIEND Many Are Debilitated

Manchester Man Victim of an Accident

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 18.—Michael Cody, stump clerk in the post office, was accidentally shot yesterday while hunting deer in Shelburne, about seven miles from Berlin, this state, dying of his injuries a few hours later. Mr. Cody, who left Manchester Saturday on his annual vacation which he had intended to pass in the north woods, started out early yesterday morning with a companion by the name of P. H. Tirrell, also of this city, along an old trail, and in attempting to cross a ravine on the remains of an old bridge he with his companion were by the giving way of a rotten timber, thrown to the bottom of the ravine.

In falling, Tirrell's rifle was accidentally discharged and the ball, after grazing his abdomen and inflicting a painful wound, pierced Cody's leg. Mr. Tirrell, after binding up the wound as well as he was able, went back out of the woods for help.

On returning with a number of lumbermen Mr. Cody refused to be moved until the arrival of a physician. Upon his arrival he was carried out of the woods, but died from the shock and loss of blood shortly after.

Mr. Cody, aged 33, was a native of Manchester, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Cody. He received his education in the high school. He was appointed a subclerk in the post office July 15, 1898, and was promoted to a regular clerkship Jan. 1, 1899.

He was considered by Postmaster Chadbourne one of the most efficient men under him and was a universal favorite not only with his fellow employees in the office but among a host of friends throughout the city.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 18.—In accordance with the agreement made between counsel in the Eddy will case at the time of the adjournment of the taking of the deposition of William E. Chandler for use in the case, Streeter, Demond & Woodworth, counsel for the defense, yesterday filed in the superior court a petition which if sustained will set aside the ruling made by Magistrate Thomas Clifford in the case upholding Mr. Chandler in his refusal to answer questions asked by Mr. Streeter in his cross examination.

The petition prays that the court summon Magistrate Clifford, requiring him to produce a copy of the Chandler deposition and show cause, if he has any, why his rulings sustaining Mr. Chandler's refusal to answer certain questions should not be set aside. A writ of mandamus is also asked for compelling Magistrate Clifford to reconsider his alleged erroneous rulings and in their stead make rulings requiring an answer from Mr. Chandler to the questions he has refused to answer.

The questions which Mr. Chandler has refused to answer in the course of his deposition deal mainly with a mysterious friend of Mrs. Augusta Stetson, concerning whom he refused to give any information, also the relations of Henry Robinson of this city to the present case and "the next friend" suit, the amount of money paid Mr. Robinson as collector of Christian Science literature, and whether or not George W. Glover, the present plaintiff in the will contest, has promised to repay Mr.

UNNATURAL LIVING THE CAUSE OF PLAGUE

"The artificial environment of the city is killing us," said a national physician, in an address to the Southwestern Indiana Teachers' Association, on the new hygienic, at Indianapolis Friday night. "There is no doubt about it," continued the physician. "The world is slowly going mad. If the denizens of the earth do not reverse utterly their mode of living within 250 years, we will all be lunatics."

Before he finished, many of the teachers, particularly women, left the hall too nervous to hear the final stages of his arraignment of life as it is lived in the twentieth century.

"The physician is undoubtedly correct," said one of the specialists who is introducing "Tona Vita," the remarkable new tonic, recently. "The strain and excitement of metropolitan life is entirely too much for the constitution of the average person," continued the specialist, "and a most distressing condition in all large cities like Lowell results. The unnatural methods of living, which produce this artificial environment, dispossess the organic body of its characteristic properties, completely undermining the health and are directly responsible for that modern malady which is known to us as nervous debility."

"Comparatively few realize what a tremendous number of people among those who live in the larger cities like Lowell are afflicted with nervous debility in a more or less aggravated form. Nor does the public realize the symptoms of this disease when they see them. Most of the so-called 'lady troubles,' nearly all indigestion and fully half of the headaches in Lowell can be attributed solely to nervous debility."

"We are introducing for the first time in this country a preparation that will positively remove this condition. 'Tona Vita' will repair all organic weaknesses, whether man or woman, and build up and restore the body to a healthy, normal condition within an astonishingly short space of time. The value of 'Tona Vita' is being satisfactorily demonstrated in all of the big cities of the country today. There is no better evidence of merit than that which is shown by the testimony of those who have actually tested a medicine, and we are receiving just such evidence from scores of people who have found 'Tona Vita' as represented."

The specialists will meet all callers between the hours of 9 a. m. and 8 p. m. at Hall & Lyon's drug store, and explain the nature of their new preparation.

Chandler money advanced in the carrying on of the suit.

Mr. Chandler's reason for refusing to answer the questions was that it would disclose the manner in which, and the witnesses by whom he intends to prove his case, and that the information required by the questions was of privileged character. The defense holds that the questions are proper and not included in the class of privileged communication.

No date has been set as yet for the hearing.

HORSE WAS SHOT

Animal Fell Into a Ditch in Broadway

A rather strange accident in which a valuable horse lost his life occurred in Broadway last night, when the horse of John Lynch of Chelmsford fell into a gutter and could not be extricated alive.

The water department recently dug a ditch at the corner of Broadway and Chalmers street, the said ditch being 29 inches deep, 50 inches long and six feet wide. Last night the horse was trotting over Broadway when it stumbled over a pile of dirt in the roadway and fell into the ditch, its forelegs deep into the hole and the rest of its body on the street. Efforts were made to extricate the horse from the dangerous position.

The water department was notified and men with jacks spent several hours trying to raise the animal. During all this time the horse in its struggle wedged itself firmer into the narrow opening. Finally Agent Richardson of the Humane society was called and he put an end to the horse's sufferings by sending a bullet into its head.

KILLED BY PLAYMATE

Saco Boy Victim of an Accident

SACO, Me., Oct. 18.—Alton S. Scamman, the 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Scamman of the Buxton road, was instantly killed late yesterday afternoon by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of Edwin A. Leavitt, aged 15, son of Edwin A. Leavitt, of Gloucester, Mass., a Thornton student, living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Grant on the Buxton road since last June.

Coroner Fred C. Bradbury, after making an investigation, decided not to hold an inquest. As he was convinced the shooting was accidental, Young Leavitt is heartbroken by the fatality.

Yesterday afternoon Leavitt went to the Scamman farm to play with the boys. About 5:30, while he was sitting in a farm wagon, he picked up the shotgun on the bottom of the wagon. Just then there was an explosion, and little Alton Scamman, who was standing in the barn door fact, Leavitt, threw up his hands and fell dead. The shot had pierced his heart.

Two doctors were summoned from this city, but there was nothing to do when they arrived. Leavitt said last night that he could not explain how the shooting occurred. It was his own gun.

ROCKINGHAM PARK
SALEM, N. H.
New England Aviation Company
CAPITAL $1,000,000 PAR VALUE $100 PER SHARE
FEDERAL TRUST CO., Transfer Agents
LIBERTY TRUST CO., Registrars

This company controls and operates Rockingham Park, established in Salem, N. H., in 1906 by the late John W. Gates. The property, which cost $1,000,000 completed, saw less than a week of activity because of restrictions as to pool selling imposed by the New Hampshire legislature.

This park contains 400 acres, adjoins the Boston & Maine R. R. station at Salem, just across the Massachusetts line, is 34 miles from Boston, 4 miles from Lawrence, 10 miles from Lowell, Haverhill, Nashua and Portsmouth and 20 miles from Manchester. Two enormous steel grandstands, unequaled anywhere in New England, have a seating capacity of 15,000 people. Two beautiful and modern clubhouses. 25 large stables with all the accessories.

No aerodrome in the country can begin to compare in its facilities or accessibility or convenience with Rockingham Park.

EARNINGS OF THE PROPERTY
To recapitulate, we have in one piece of property the equipment necessary for model institutions as follows: A Country Club; a New England Horse Show and Fair; an International Aviation Meet; a Horse Racing Meet; an Automobile Racing Meet; Baseball and Football Games and other Athletic and Winter Sports.

(When the Olympic Games are awarded to New England it will be found that no other park so convenient for the contestants and spectators is to be found. There is seating capacity for 200,000 persons, each to have a clear view of the finish line of the race tracks.)

We do not wish to be extravagant in our ideas as to the earnings of this property but when we consider what the Rochester fair has paid in the way of dividends, that property starting with a capital of $70, what the Brockton fair has done for its stockholders, and what other smaller fairs have earned, we believe that our enormous property, with its many interests, can assuredly return a very handsome dividend to the stockholders.

The Park was opened for the first time under the present management Columbus Day, October 12, 1911, for an aviation meet. Owing to the uncertainty of getting the aviators no announcements of the meet were made until Saturday, October 7, and with only four days' notice over 30,000 people attended, coming from Boston and surrounding cities.

Detailed information regarding the New England Aviation Company photographs of the chief points of interest and permits to visit the great park may be obtained from

AUTO DRIVERS ARE EXERCISING CARE ON SMOOTH PAVED STREETS

There is little or no need of posting officers in Northbrook, Central, Market or any of the other streets in the centre of the city which are smooth paved to prevent operators of automobiles from exceeding the speed limit for the streets are in such a slippery condition that the drivers are using caution themselves to prevent their machines from sliding. The quick application of the breaks on the rear wheels on these slippery pavements, if the machine is going fast, will cause the wheels to either skid along straight or else swerve to the right or left.

SAVING OF $52,000
CAUSED BY ELIMINATING CHICK-EN FROM ARMY MENU

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The elimination of chicken from the United States army menu, the limitation of turkey to Thanksgiving and Christmas, the substitution of so-called "field bread" for hard tack and abolishment of the field ration sum up the important changes in the army ration for the American soldier made during the past year, according to the report of Commissary Gen. Henry G. Sharpe. The elimination of chicken has resulted in a yearly saving to the government of $52,000.

It cost the United States 16-1/2 cents a day more to feed the American soldier in Alaska than it did those stationed in the United States.

Even the Philippine Islands, show a greater average cost per diem per man. The report shows the average cost per year per man in the United States to be $106.95 and in the Philippines $114.21, or an average cost per diem in the former of 29.03 cents and in the latter of 31.29 cents.

Out of a total of $1,864,594 spent during the year for subsistence only $96,906 is accredited to losses from ordinary wastage in issue and transportation, deterioration for climatic causes, theft and property worn out.

DURLAND IS HELD
Charged With Being a Hotel Beat

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Kelllogg Durland, friend of Magistrate Joseph Corrigan, sponsor for Li Quong Jun's, otherwise Charles Boston's, pistol permit, magazine writer and alleged friend of King Alfonso of Spain, was held for trial as a hotel beat yesterday.

Durland, who has travelled the world over as a special correspondent of several magazines, being arrested in Russia in the revolution of 1907 several times as a political spy, was accused by Thomas Carroll, president of the Hotel Hermitage company, with having beaten the hotel out of a board bill of $258. This was not all, according to Mr. Carroll. On July 11, last, according to the complainant, he presented a $100 check drawn on the Hudson Trust company in payment of his bill, but requested a loan of $120 thereon. The check bore the signature of Genevieve Durland, the defendant's wife.

The latter on the telephone disclaimed all knowledge of the transaction, according to Mr. Carroll, and said she had but $15 remaining to her account in the Hudson Trust company. Meanwhile, however, Durland paid $280 to Carroll.

Mrs. Durland since early in the summer has been occupying at Monroe, N. Y., Alfred B. Durland's house, from which she leased from Ferdinand Finney Earle of affinity fame. The warrant for Durland's arrest was obtained a week ago and he was arrested last Friday at the Explorers club, in West Twenty-ninth street. The $500 bail required by Magistrate Hermon was produced that night, but on Monday was declared forfeited by Magistrate O'Connor when Durland did not appear for a hearing. He was supposed to be in Washington. Yesterday the forfeiture was rescinded when he appeared for a hearing.

Durland, put in no defence yesterday and was held in $250 cash bail for trial.

C. M. A. C. MEETING
INAUGURATED A CONTEST FOR MEMBERSHIP

A well attended meeting of the C. M. A. C. was held last night in their hall in Pawtucket street, President Xavier Delisle occupying the chair. Considerable business was transacted, and the committee in charge of the coming pilgrimage to be held at St. Joseph's cemetery, reported that arrangements for this solemn ceremony were almost completed.

Another vital point of interest at last night's meeting was the initiation contest which was opened for the two coming months, prizes are offered to the members who will bring in a certain number of applications, and in order to help those entering the contest, the initiation fee of $2 was suspended for the coming two months.

The Garde d'Honneur which is a branch of this organization is preparing a whist and concert to be held at the C. M. A. C. hall on Oct. 31, and an elaborate entertainment program is being prepared for the occasion.

THE GLIDDEN TOUR
Rains Interfere With the Progress of Party

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 18.—The Glidden tourists had the worst possible day of it yesterday. The morning run was pleasant enough, but in the afternoon after leaving Natural Bridge they ran into what is said locally to be the worst rainstorm in twenty years. It converted the already very muddy hill roads between here and the bridge into slush traps. Team after team fell down in their point scores, but the drivers were lucky to get off with nothing worse.

There were two mishaps that look official cars off the road. Gov. Smith of Georgia was riding in the Cunningham when it skidded off at a turn. The car ran into a telephone pole, hitting it about where the governor was sitting. He wasn't hurt, the blow merely carrying away the top. Charles J. Glidden and Referee Walker were in the car, which was driven by a chauffeur.

Robert P. Hooper, president of the A. A. A., was driving his Garford car when it went into a ditch a dozen miles from here. It will take some horses to get it out again. Mr. Hooper's guests were Mrs. T. J. Walker, wife of the referee, Mrs. Randolph Ransom and Larry Fike Smith, the governor's daughter, and Miss Laura Anselmy. No one was hurt.

It was an interesting day at the start albeit a run over very tough hill climbing country up to Lexington. A sort of added control. The tourists stopped here long enough to see an admirable drill by the cadets of the Virginia Institute and to go to the tomb of Gen. Robert E. Lee in the chapel of Washington and Lee university, a fine, compact institution, with 600 students. On the road up to Lexington they saw a sign reading "Three cheers for Hoke Smith, damn the tariff. Give us better roads and more schools." This was at a place called Mint Springs.

From Lexington to Natural Bridge the trip was brief and not thrilling. The rain began just as the tourists sat down to a lunch hardly calculated to lighten their spirits. It costs to $1 to look at the bridge. All recalled the George Washington anecdote, starting out of the 30 miles from the bridge the tourists realized the worst was upon them. The small cars had trouble getting through the heavy mud and up the hills, holding back the cars of higher power that followed. The roads were so narrow on the level that any road hog driver could hold back anyone he wanted. Not a few of the drivers complained that such conduct had put them out of business, so that although they drove violently on the good stretch of eight miles or so from this place they were unable to make contact on time. There were informal protests about this.

DEATHS
BLAKE—Mrs. Nellie Blake died on Tuesday morning at her home, 663 School street, aged 67 years, 10 months and 4 days. Deceased was a widow of the late William O. Blake. She had a long sickness which was borne with great patience. She leaves, besides her immediate family, one brother in Nashua and a sister in New York city, also two grandchildren.

STIRRING SCENES IN SECOND GAME OF WORLD'S SERIES IN PHILADELPHIA
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—The victory of the Athletics over the Giants in the second game of the world's series by a score of 2 to 1 was decisive, though won by a narrow margin. It was a clean cut victory for the local team, whose members outfielded the Giants, and, although they did not hit them numerically, what little bunching of hits they did was with deadly effect. The Athletics opened with a run in the first inning, and the Giants were at the mercy of the cool and admirably assorted pitching of Mack's veteran southpaw, Eddie Plank, and reached first only at the rarest intervals. It was a more interesting game than the first game played in New York, but contained not much more action than the battle on the Polo grounds. As in the first contest, the team that made the fewer hits but committed no errors won. Baker's hit in the sixth inning over the right field fence for a home run, sending Collins in ahead of him, was the feature of the game. The drive was one of the longest ever made a shibe

NELSON LOST AGAIN

Pal Moore Was Too Much for the Old Battler

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Pal Moore, the Philadelphia lightweight, in winning the decision over Battling Nelson in their 12-round bout at the Armory A. A. last night, gave the old Battler a far worse whaling than Young Saylor gave him here a few weeks ago.

Those who had any idea that the Battler would come back are satisfied after last night's bout that there is no chance for him. Though Moore had the better of the fight, several times, he did not succeed in getting Nelson off his feet or keep him from boxing in all the time.

That the Battler was not defeated decisively was a surprise to the spectators. He took enough punishment to stop almost any one, but displayed his old-time toughness and kept going after Moore all the time. Only in two rounds did Nelson have the honors, and in those rounds Moore was laying up so as not to tire himself out hitting Nelson.

The Quaker City boy also took many blows that he could easily have blocked or avoided, but as there was no great amount of steam behind them Moore was not in the least affected by them. The Battler has lost his judgment and distance, and he cannot counter the way he did when he was the premier in that class. Many times Moore made him miss without exerting himself to any extent, Nelson resorted to his old style of working till he got to close quarters, and at that style of milling he found his match in Moore.

Bat's Punches Didn't Hurt

Moore blocked many of the Battler's short rights and lefts for the body, but Nelson in about every round did land some of the punches on the ribs, stomach and kidneys. But the ones that Moore gave in return on the same spots had more power behind them.

A number of times Nelson backed Moore into corners and tried hard to get in some telling blows. Twice Nelson nearly pushed Moore out of the ring. In every round Moore hooked and jabbed the left into Nelson's face and onto the jaw, and crossed the right to the jaw so fast and often that it was impossible to keep count of the blows.

Occasionally Moore showed some of his footwork and he had Nelson puzzled. Invariably, when he would slip away from Nelson's rushes, he would come back with a left hook or right to the jaw before Nelson knew exactly where Moore was.

In many of the rounds Moore showed Nelson that he was handy also at the wrestling style. He would get Nelson around the neck with the left, and while pulling him about the ring would keep up with him with the right. In coming out of clinches Moore also displayed cleverness, for he would catch Nelson on the chin and face with stiff right uppercuts.

In several of the rounds Moore landed Nelson lefts and rights on the jaw so fast that it looked as if another K. O. would be registered against the Battler, but he weathered the storm of blows till the bell sounded.

He came out from his corner at the opening of every round with the same

NEW YORK CITY MAY BECOME THE NEW MONEY CENTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—New York as the rival and possible successor of London as the money exchange center of the world, under the proposed national reserve association plans, was the picture drawn by Isidor Straus, the banker, at yesterday's hearing of the national monetary commission.

Mr. Straus, who represented the New York branch of the banking reform association, made the prediction in answer to a criticism that the plan did not take into account the causes for the hoarding of currency by bankers in times of panic.

"The plan contains an almost absolute guarantee," said Mr. Straus, "that the National Reserve association will supply currency wherever needed. The plan gives the small banker the National Reserve association to fall back on in times of stress and panic."

Pointing out that under its provisions merchants would no longer be forced to depend upon time drafts on London in buying goods abroad since New York time drafts would no longer be tied up until maturity, Mr. Straus said:

"With this National Reserve association in action, New York will become the rival of London as a money exchange center, and I doubt not that it will surpass the English city. The plan may not be perfect, but it is the grandest example of any system ever devised to put American banking on a par with European."

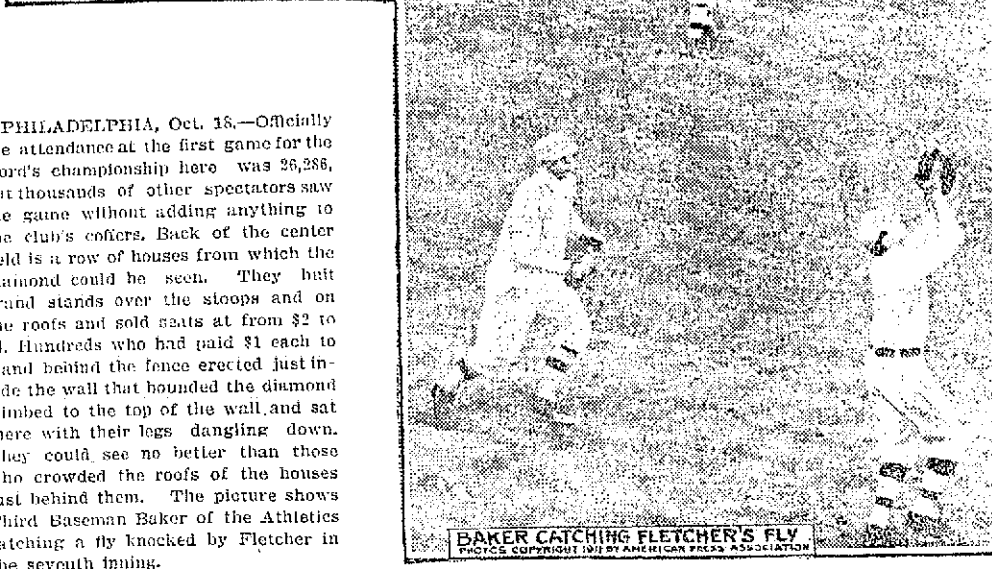

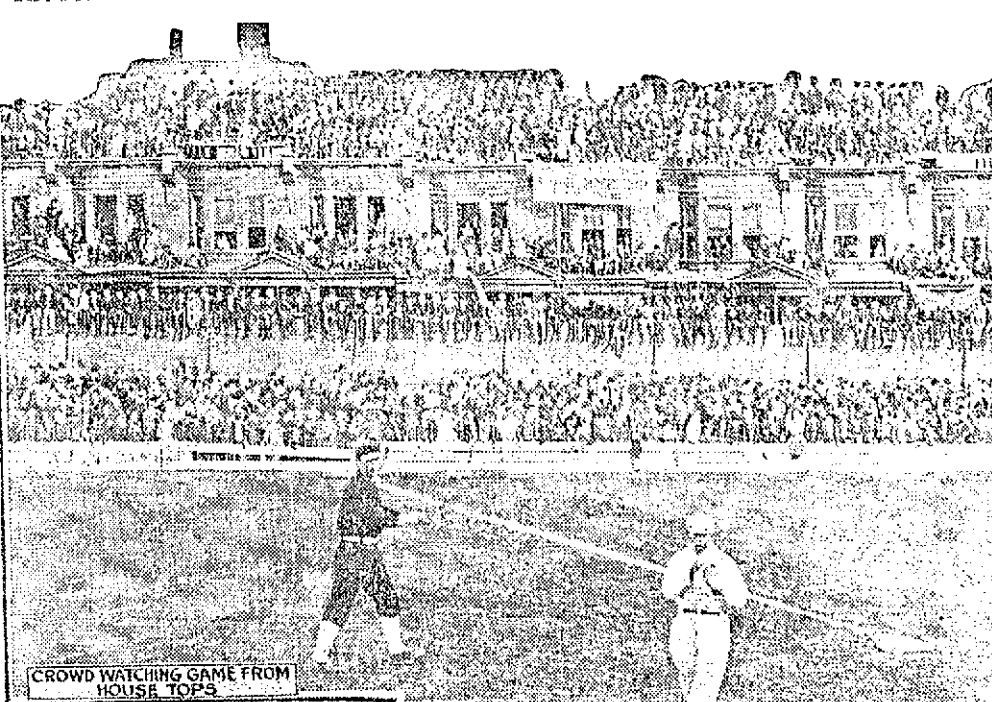

FATALLY INJURED

ESCAPED PATIENT WAS STRUCK BY A TRAIN

He was conscious when the police automobile ambulance arrived and told his story on the way to the hospital. He was standing on the track and the locomotive backed down the track and hit him. He did not know why he failed to get out of the way. He said

THOUSANDS SEE WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP GAME WITHOUT ADDING TO CLUB PROFITS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Officially the attendance at the first game for the world's championship here was 26,286, but thousands of other spectators saw the game without adding anything to the club's coffers.

Back of the center field is a row of houses from which the diamond could be seen. They built grand stands over the stoops and on the roofs and sold seats at from $2 to $4. Hundreds who had paid $1 each to stand behind the fence erected just inside the wall that bounded the diamond climbed to the top of the wall and sat there with their legs dangling down. They could see no better than those who crowded the roofs of the houses just behind them. The picture shows Third Baseman Baker of the Athletics catching a fly knocked by Fletcher in the seventh inning.

CUT HIS THROAT

MAN WAS MARRIED ONLY TEN DAYS AGO

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Oct. 18.—George Powers, aged 28 years, lies dead in an undertaking shop and his bride of ten days is heartbroken in a local hotel.

Powers came here from Woburn, Mass., about a year and a half ago to work as a drygoods clerk and boarded at the Hotel Bronson, where he met Catherine de Jan, a waitress, and she fell in love with him. He grew very fond of her and on Monday of last week they were married.

He began drinking that day and on Sunday evening he cut his throat with a razor and though the wound was sewed up by a physician, Powers tore it open and died yesterday.

TWO WOMEN KILLED

Auto Crashed Into a Telegraph Pole

WAREHOUSE POINT, Conn., Oct. 18.—In an automobile accident here late yesterday Mrs. Rose Richards of Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Julian Richards of North Adams, Mass., were instantly killed, and Mrs. Theophile S. Mailoux of 330 Summer avenue, Springfield, Mass., was injured, but not fatally.

The automobile in which they were riding was owned and run by Mr. Mailoux, husband of Mrs. Mailoux. The party were on their way to Springfield from Hartford and had just descended a steep hill when a rear tire burst, causing the machine to skid sharply so that before Mr. Mailoux could get it under control it crashed into a telegraph pole.

The three women and Mr. Mailoux were pinned under the car and their screams attracted attention. As soon as help reached the spot the car was lifted so that the four were taken out and carried to nearby houses where they were attended by physicians.

Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Julia Richards were injured internally and died soon after being rescued. Mrs. Mailoux is injured internally and it is thought that she will not live. Mr. Mailoux, other than for a shaking up, escaped without injury.

Mrs. Rose Richards was 49 years old, and leaves a husband and six children. Mrs. Julia Richards was 75 years old. The party left Springfield for Hartford, Conn., yesterday morning and were returning here when the accident occurred. Theophile S. Mailoux, owner and driver of the machine, is a local contractor, living at 250 Summer avenue. Mrs. Rose Richards of Henrysburg, Conn., and Mrs. Julian Richards of North Adams, Mass., the two women who were killed, were aunts of Mrs. Mailoux.

At the Mailoux home it was said last night that Mrs. Mailoux's injuries were not expected to be serious. Her husband was fortunate in escaping with minor hurts. She is 42 years old.

WOMEN AT NEWPORT DISCARD FACE POWDER

"During my summer's stay at Newport," writes Mae Martyn, "I was greatly interested in the unusually charming complexions of the women. I soon found that these fortunate possessors of perfect complexions no longer use face powder, since it clogs up the skin pores and causes blackheads, wrinkles, etc. Instead they use a lotion, made by dissolving 4 ounces of spruce in either 32-pint hot water or 12-pint witch hazel, adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. Where witch hazel is used the lotion dries more quickly."

This splendid lotion clears and whitens the skin, making it smooth, soft and velvety. It removes that shiny, sallow look and does not show or rub off like powder. It is far superior to face powder, and a permanent skin beautifier."

FOOTBALL GOSSIP

College Teams Beginning to Show Form

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18.—An unusually hard practice for Monday was held at Yale field Monday afternoon to start the work of the week before the game against West Point. There was no practice game, but there was hard scrubbing to test line plunging plays and later on a few forward passes were used for any length of time.

The scrimmage started with the regular backfield, with Merritt replacing Howe. The other backs were Anderson, Spaulding and Reilly. Anderson didn't stay in the scrimmage long, but the other players almost until it was over. In the line the only regulars were Francis and Perry, who played nearly through the scrimmage. The ends were Avery and Davis, who cannot yet be called regular ends. Connolly, brother of the famous Carroll Connolly, was center. Parker was guard, in place of McDevitt, and Warren was the other tackle besides Perry.

The varsity received the ball dot for line plunges, but the scrubs held them pretty well. Finally plunges by Anderson and Reilly brought the ball thirty yards from the goal. Anderson tried a field goal, which was blocked. The teams were held up for special plays and then the scrubs had a chance to hammer away with the ball toward the varsity goal line. Finally they got it over. Ross carried the ball. For the scrubs Pass and Childs played the best game.

The men were confused by the shouts of the coaches, all of whom were yelling different commands. Besides the regular staff of coaches there were present Guy Hutchinson, H. M. Wheaton, the Navy coach, Paul Vander, Howard Jones, Leavenworth, Phil Smith and De Witt Colquhoun. The team will take twice the varsity play on to West Point. It became known Monday, and all those who got in the game against Virginia will have a chance against the Army.

AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 18.—Although there was no actual scrimmaging in the stadium for Harvard Monday, the varsity men were put through two full hours' work on plays. Only three practice days remain for Harvard to prepare for the game with Princeton and in the meantime Harvard will meet Brown. All the men were on the field except Felton and Blackall, the former being excused for laboratory work. The position coaches had their squads in hand for an hour and the men were given a long session of "dummy" drill. The practice was secret and all the coaches would say was that the men had been working out on formations, which, according to Harvard's system, includes drill against an unaggressive defense with an eye to perfecting the individual assignments of the attack.

The loss of Rogers will be felt keenly. It is believed Rogers' doubtful power would have been a brilliant player, but he was strong and fast and had begun to show improvement. Jenkins is a hard worker, but is too short and too light for an ideal tackle. Shaw, who has been substituting at guard for two years and who knows a lot of football, is one of the men who has been pressed into service in the coaches' quest for some one who may be made into a left wing tackle. Parmenter, who was used at center early in the year, was at left tackle part of the time Monday, as was Hittchock, concerning whose work the coaches remain very non-committal.

PRINCETON PRACTICE

PRINCETON, Oct. 18.—A stiff drill in defensive tactics and punting formations took up most of the Princeton football practice Monday. The varsity was on the defensive throughout the regular scrimmage and presented the strongest opposition to the scrub attack that they have shown in any of the practice games this season. They held the second team repeatedly on the 5 yard line and not once could the scrubs push their way over for a touchdown.

Dewitt and Penfield both did a lot of kicking in the scrimmage, with the ends getting down under the points. The former got his kicks off for long distances but was slow in getting them away and while Penfield failed to get them on as much distance on some of his punts, he was more consistent than Dewitt.

The candidates for ends took turns getting down under kicks, each man receiving special coaching on the plays. White returned to active play again and took Vaughn held down the varsity, while Vaughn held down the other end. The latter was somewhat of a disappointment, as he missed a good many tackles, but he should im-

REV. DR. DAVIES

CONSECRATED BISHOP OF WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS

WORCESTER, Oct. 18.—In his own church and in the presence of a distinguished assembly of ecclesiastics and citizens, Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Davies, rector of All Saints' church, was solemnly consecrated second bishop of the Episcopal diocese of western Massachusetts today, the feast of St. Luke the physician-apostle.

The new bishop is the second of the name to be elevated to the episcopate in this country, his father having been Right Rev. Thomas Frederick Davies, bishop of Michigan, and the consecrator of Bishop Alexander H. Vinton of Rhode Island, who passed away recently.

The sermon was preached by Bishop Frederick Burgess of Long Island. The presenting bishops were Right Rev. Drs. David Williams of Michigan and Robert Codman of Maine. The bishop-elect was attended by Rev. Dr. Horace R. Hutchings of New York and Rev. Thomas W. Nicholson of Pittsfield, chairman of the standing committee of the diocese. During the consecration all of the bishops present joined in the laying on of hands and singing the "Veni Creator, Spiritus." Rev. Charles Lancaster Short, senior curate of All Saints' church, was master of ceremonies.

At the conclusion of the lengthy service there was a reception and luncheon for the visiting bishops and the other clergy at the home of former Congressman Charles Washburn.

RHODE ISLAND REPUBLICANS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 18.—There was every prospect of a harmonious meeting when the delegates to the republican state convention assembled today to nominate candidates for state officers. It was thought that the whole ticket, with one exception, would be renominated, the only change resulting from Attorney General Greenough's determination not to run again. Herbert A. Rice, a local attorney, was the only opposition to the re-nomination of Gov. Fother and the other state officers appeared previous to the opening of the convention.

Dr. Nagle perhaps had not heard of the enterprise of one Dr. Jernegan in a project of this kind. Perhaps some of the members had been stockholders in the Jernegan scheme by which so many were swindled.

PALPABLE FALSEHOOD EXPOSED

In the discussion of public issues the auditors should take care not to be imposed upon by false statements. This is particularly true on the merits or demerits of the new charter.

Think of the implied imposition, the misrepresentation and falsehood contained in the statement that the money power is behind this charter movement in this city and that the newspapers are paid for what they publish in favor of the new charter. So far as we know the money power is not bothering about the form of charter the city of Lowell shall adopt; but we surmise that if the money power had anything to do with the movement, there would be some evidence of its influence at the counting room of the different newspapers, in the printing offices and in public rallies to boom the charter.

So far as The Sun is concerned it can pronounce the statement that the press is paid for what it prints in favor of the charter as an unmitigated falsehood. This paper published a full copy of the text of the charter at a very moderate figure for the charter committee of sixty, and that with a few paid notices of the meeting at which Dr. Elliot spoke is all the paid matter that has appeared in this paper. We are aware that the committee is short of funds to push the movement, and what we print voluntarily in favor of the charter we print of our own accord, not for the committee of sixty but for the welfare of the city of Lowell, because we believe the new charter will bring a great boom to our city, will improve business and cause new industries to settle here. While we are wrangling at city hall, while our city government is divided against itself we need not expect any satisfactory results. We want to get a new charter and then start a system of government that will bring results such as we see in some of the progressive cities of the west. If one set of men cannot do this under the new charter we can try another and another until we succeed, but one thing is assured that political deadlocks and reckless management will not thrive under the new charter.

It is a charter for all the people, a charter that will give every voter ten times as much political power as he has at present, a charter under which all men will have an equal chance regardless of creed, color or race.

Now as to the attitude of the press on such a movement, the paper that would oppose such a charter would be untrue to the people, untrue to the city and unworthy public confidence. The advancement of the public good is our only motive, and we hope that the citizens of Lowell will show that they are fully as intelligent as those of Haverhill, Lynn, Gloucester, Taunton and other cities that have voluntarily adopted the Des Moines charter.

Now we have plainly shown that the charge that the newspapers are paid for what they print in favor of the charter is untrue. But there are other charges equally groundless emanating from the same source, and among them are these—

- That the new charter would throw out of employment citizens of Lowell and bring in foreigners to do the work.
- That it would build up a political machine at city hall.
- That it would take power away from the people.
- That it is not democratic and is intended to benefit some particular class.
- That the local corporations are backing it as a means of reducing taxes.
- That the present system of government is the best ever devised by man.

These are only a few of the misrepresentations that are circulated against the new charter while the friends of the charter do not claim that it will make our city a paradise or that it will secure the most desirable men right away. The new charter has safeguards against bad men because it assumes that an occasional misfit may get into office. If any such case warrants the recall, that can be applied to oust the official who has proved incompetent or recreant to his duty.

We would, therefore, caution the honest voters of Lowell not to be misled by men who make such unwarranted statements. Better government will benefit every man, woman and child in Lowell. That is the object of this charter and explains why not only every newspaper but every individual citizen should support this charter.

The government of American cities has been the byword of the nations. This movement for a business charter is intended to correct this evil, to stop grafting and every form of corruption and to give American cities clean, honest and progressive government.

SEEN AND HEARD

Again the world's championship baseball series is on. New York with her Giants and Philadelphia with her Athletics are the contenders. Popular interest in these games is intense. Throughout the vast area contained within the four boundaries of the United States attention last Saturday afternoon was centered onto a little plot of land in New York called the Polo grounds. Here were gathered to witness the opening contest some 40,000 spectators, as many as could possibly be jammed within the four walls of the enclosure. Besides these thousands of onlookers, there were attending the game that afternoon several hundred special baseball writers some of whom had traveled to New York from as far distant as the Pacific slope. These chroniclers observed the contest play by play and the results of their observations, the stories of the game, were read that evening in almost every home throughout the country. In those homes and on the streets, in every place where men congregate, the principal topic of conversation, of animated conversation, was the New York-Philadelphia series. Why this enthusiasm for baseball is so general among the American people, why this game has become fixed as the national sport, is not difficult of explanation. The admiration of those endowed with strength blended with skill, that happy combination wherein the ancient Greeks excelled always has been an American trait. It follows that a sport in which these qualities, in a highly developed form, are necessary must also be popular. The admiration of these manly traits starts with boyhood and continues to old age.

In the American boy the admiration develops into emulation, with the result that baseball has become his most popular pastime. So popular is it with him that on reaching manhood with him that on reaching manhood, if he does not play the game as a means of healthful recreation, he at least may be counted upon to enlist in the army of "fans" who spend each Saturday afternoon at the ball grounds. So fascinating is the sport that his interest in it survives even after that period when his hair becomes streaked with gray. The game casts its alluring spell over young and old.

Baseball, it is certain, is honestly played. Honest it is, if for no other cause than that the club owners, with their millions of dollars invested in this business, would, if countenancing the slightest approach to crookedness, be following the most short-sighted of business policies. They realize that the American public can be imposed upon little more than once.

There are many women who never realize that the love of a real man is for her. It is common to give the name to men, but some young women's heads are so turned by general attention paid to them, that the big love, they cannot comprehend and treasure.

The right sort of a girl is always willing to wash the dishes, bring in an armful of wood, and sew on a patch, and the wrong kind of a girl is generally found loitering in a hammock when washday comes. The girl who is willing to do things, and do them cheerfully, can generally find a place in which to put her suitcase any old time.

Often times a man is called smart who has only taken advantage of opportunities when they came up.

A man has got to get into the habit of putting coal on the furnace and lighting the ashes. It isn't that he doesn't want to do it, it is because he forgets, of course—or hasn't reached the habit.

A great many things sometimes appear quite commonplace to all those who are not in the right spirit. A man has to be doped just right in order to see a golden sunset in a thick fog.

When a man puts on a Prince Albert, who isn't used to that article of wearing apparel, it changes his disposition in spite of himself. And when a fellow wears evening clothes only once in a year or so, see how uncomfortable he is when he finds he can't put his hands in his pockets.

Of course, it is so much nicer to be able to travel and afford it, but a man who cannot travel is a fool if he doesn't study up and read about the things that are so far away that he hasn't the dollars to get there.

Ever see the girl who runs and grabs her hat when she gets an invitation to wander from the old fireside? Watch her, and see where she lands. She has a good line, but she never lies down to anything substantial.

When a woman begins to practise deception, she generally becomes pretty clever, but there is always a time when she forgets to make connections between stated facts—and then she is apt to fall all over herself.

There has been no lack of cases of heroism in the explosion, which destroyed the French battleship Liberte in Toulon harbor, and one of them at least deserves to be placed on record.

It was after the first explosion which filled the holds with poisonous gases. The electric wires were broken and all was in complete darkness below. Chief Engineer Lentin, who had vainly tried to flood the ammunition magazines, tumbled half dazed on deck and reported to Lient, Carrier that he had done his best but the pumps were not working and it was impossible to flood the holds.

"Try the impossible," was the reply. "The magazines must be flooded."

Lentin touched his cap and said: "I will try again. But you will never see me back alive."

With a firm step he went down below again and shortly afterward the final catastrophe happened.

Rev. Fr. Murphy of Ware on his return from Ireland said: "Since my last trip home everything has changed for the better. The people are more independent, and as soon as Home Rule—for which we are fighting hard—is secured, the Irish people will be the happiest and the most contented people under God's heaven. In the past 19 or 20 years some new industries have sprung up in the country, but it needs some measures of Home Rule to make the country what it should be. No one cares to start any big industry there now under the present existing conditions. The people are as happy and good-natured as ever and the scenery all over the country is perfectly beautiful. No scenery in any other part of the world can compare with it."

THE HORRIBLE LADY

Miss Arabella Stimmings wore her horrible skirt to town. Her figure was quite modern, of a style straight up and down. It was a small community in an unsettled state. The dress that Arabella cut was wonderfully great.

Old Uncle Billy Blagle came a-riding down the street. He is the most misanthropic man you'd ever chance to meet. Which makes the style of cards he plays particularly quaint. Sometimes the pair he bets is there, and then again it isn't.

Miss Arabella stood upon the curbstone, looking sweet. Yet something like a post, so perpendicularly neat.

Old Uncle Billy he rode up to rest his self a spell. An' hitched his horse to her before she had a chance to yell.

The lady she stampeded, an' the horse he had to go. But, owing to her handicap, her pace was rather slow.

She grabbed his mane and somehow got aboard an' let him jog. Bill missed his horse, an' then society was all agog.

That Arabella stole that boss her lady friends all say.

Though Bill's too courteous an' polite to see the case that way.

The men that's courtin' Arabella hint that, like as not,

Bill an' the horse was partners in a big kidnappin' plot.

The city council met an' passed an act pervadin' plain.

That nothin' of the kind henceforward must occur again.

The ladies have a right to be as stylish as they choose.

But they oughtn't to be handicapped so that they're sure to lose.

A single hobble skirt, the council says, is much too few.

An' all except one-legged ladies should be dressed with two.

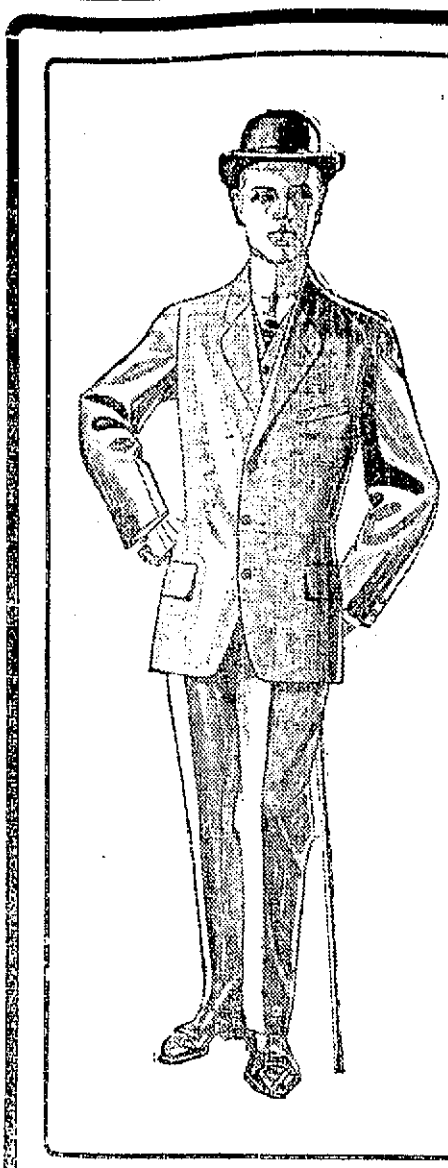

Distributed in such a way they won't be at a loss.

If they have to start a foot race or go tourin' on a horse.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Brooklyn Times: At an election the first week in December the people of Los Angeles, Cal., will be given an opportunity to say whether or not they want a municipal newspaper. The proposal is to conduct a paper which will print local and telegraph news, giving special attention to municipal affairs, print all city notices and derive what revenue it can from general advertising. It is estimated that about $25,000 a year above receipts would be required to maintain such a paper, and the citizens are to be asked if they are willing to contribute $250 a week to its publication. It seems hardly likely that they will.

FORTY CENT BETTER

Lawrence Sun: Figures of the Chicago Warehousemen's association are published that there are but 48,027,900 pounds of butter in cold storage as against 69,449,000 a year ago. The production of produce of 40-cent butter next winter seems likely to prove correct. This means a tight pinch to many a housekeeper with her back up against the wall of a fixed income. It is useless for her to expect that such high prices can be attacked at the farmer's end. He is paying two or three times as much for the food which he gives his cows as he was ten or twenty years ago. Furthermore, his bill for farm help has doubled.

IT COSTS TO BE METROPOLITAN. Salem News: Under the assessments levied upon the various cities and towns which compose the metropolitan district, as it is called, a sum in excess of $2,000,000 will be paid this fall into the state treasury. The assessments are thus divided: For water, $2,333,021; parks and boulevards, $1,110,098; sewers, $931,480; Charles river basin, $827,509. It is interesting to note some of the levies put upon cities, and these items are therefore selected almost at random: Quincy, $121,222; Malden, $125,770; Lynn, $61,717; Waltham, $42,093.

Taking everything into account, Salem may felicitate herself that she is just removed from the outer line of the metropolitan zone. A PROPHECY FULFILLED. Boston Globe: A prophecy made in the democratic state platform a little more than a week ago seems to have come true. Apparently it was more than mere rhetoric in that document when this warning was given to the voters of the kind of campaign that might be adopted: "It threatens with poverty, panics and industrial ruin those who question its exactions and menace its supremacy. Even now, it need be, there will be shutdowns and wage reductions that the toiler may see his ballot through tearful and hungry eyes." The fulfillment came last week when the republican candidate for Lieutenant-governor informed the wage-earners of Holyoke that he had taken with the help of a certain industrial corporation in that city, who agreed that it was a fair statement that if President Taft had signed the wool bill passed by the last session of congress his company could not have run its mills at a profit if every one of the 2000 employees worked for nothing. There was a threat of poverty and of industrial ruin such as the democratic platform mentioned. The truth of the statement was quickly challenged. Gov. Foss looked into the facts and he declares that the corporation in question in 1909 paid a cash dividend of 40 percent and also 100 percent in stock; that last year it paid 24 percent cash, and that up to July this year it had paid 18 percent. In the 38 years that it has been in existence its stock dividends have averaged 60 percent a year, and it is now paying dividends on a capitalization of $2,400,000 at the rate of 24 percent, which is at the rate of 396 percent on its original capitalization.

BRUTALLY BEATEN
Bangor Man Held Up and Robbed

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Two highwaymen held up and brutally beat and robbed Edwin J. Nelson, aged 38, of 70 May street, Bangor, Me., last evening in the shadow of the Ames building at the corner of Washington and Court streets.

Without warning the two highwaymen grabbed and began beating Nelson, who attempted to defend himself, while he yelled for help. A throng of men and women who were passing assembled about the struggling men and looked at what they supposed was an ordinary street fight.

The two highwaymen dropped the man and fled when somebody shouted that the police were coming. Nelson fell to the sidewalk, bleeding profusely from multiple wounds about the head, face and nose. He was removed to the Relief station, where the physicians bandaged his wounds and kept him for the night.

The highwaymen succeeded in obtaining a black leather wallet from him which contained jewels valued at $50 and a diamond stud valued at $50 and a diamond watch chain, set with an opal in the center, valued at $25.

The thieves tore Nelson's pockets apart in their unsuccessful efforts to obtain his money. He had considerable money with him at the time. Nelson is a guest at 12 Causeway street, while he is in Boston. The police were sent out to search for the highwaymen.

CANNOT HIDE HIS LIGHT UNDER A BUSHEL

MR. I. L. SHOWEM IS OUT OF HIS UNCLE'S WILL AGAIN

FOUND CREMATED

Woman Had Been Rejected by Her Husband

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Lying in a clump of blazing bushes, charred almost beyond recognition, the body of Mrs. Harriet E. Schneider was found yesterday afternoon near her husband's hotel, at Cherry and Springfield avenues, Springfield, L. I. Her hair and clothing had been consumed. The police said the woman had committed suicide by setting fire to the bushes and jumping into them.

The woman's act is said to have been caused by the refusal of her husband to take her back. They had been living apart since last Christmas day. Recently he obtained an interlocutory divorce decree, but her attorney, Elmer Ashmead, of Jamaica, had it set aside. The case is still pending.

A month ago Mrs. Schneider attempted suicide at Rockaway Beach by drinking carbolic acid. A magistrate released her when she promised never again to make an attempt upon her life. She said then that she tried to die because, without the companionship of her husband, life was not worth living.

Since the separation Mrs. Schneider had been living with her widowed mother, Mrs. Walter Highie, on Springfield avenue, only a few blocks from her husband's hotel.

A few days ago she obtained a promise from Mrs. Sarah E. Smith, her husband's bookkeeper, to try to effect a reconciliation. Yesterday, when Mrs. Schneider appeared at the hotel Mrs. Smith told her he had declared he would have nothing more to do with her and intended to sell his business and move.

Several hours later two small boys told Mrs. Smith that Mrs. Schneider had been found dead. Beside the body was found a pint flask, which had contained carbolic acid. Detectives Blum, Davis and White believe Mrs. Schneider poured the contents over herself before jumping into the blazing bushes.

Schneider said he was convinced that she had killed herself, and believed her mind had been unbalanced. The police said there were no indications of foul play.

THE BRIDGEWALKER

Discovered Attempt to Blow Up Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—G. W. Lange, an expert on explosives, employed by the Southern Pacific railroad to investigate the alleged attempt to dynamite the El Capitán bridge, 200 miles from Santa Barbara, over which President Taft's train passed last Monday morning, expressed the opinion here today that the 25 sticks of dynamite found beneath the bridge had been placed there before the president's train passed and plans made to blow up the structure.

"It was while the man was adjusting the second charge of dynamite," said Mr. Lange, "that the official bridge-walker, once discovered and fired upon him. The man ran and as it was dark no good description of him could be given. It was not until later in the day that Section Foreman Brown discovered the presence of the charge of 25 sticks of dynamite with the fuse attached. There was not sufficient explosive placed to completely wreck the structure but from what I observed it was clearly the work of an expert."

TURNED ON GAS

MAN THEN TOOK A DOSE OF POISON

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Swallowing a large dose of carbolic acid and then lying down upon his bed in the Hotel Tremble in the west end, with the gas pouring from an opened pipe on the wall, a young man about 20 years of age, believed to belong in Everett, committed suicide sometime between the time he went to his room Monday night and the detection of odor of gas yesterday morning.

Registering under the name of John Bernard, the young man had evidently prepared to end his life sometime before he came to the hotel, for he brought with him, beside the poison, a pair of gas tongs and a long section of gas tubing.

The preble hotel, which is at 133 Court street, was formerly lighted by gas, and when electricity was installed the piping was removed, a cap being placed over the pipe where it had formerly entered the room.

The dead man took off this cap with the gas piers, attached the rubber tubing and carried the other end of it to the side of the bed.

After drinking the carbolic acid, which was diluted, he put the gas tube in his mouth.

Medical Examiner Walters did everything possible last night to identify the dead man after receiving a rumor that he might be the young man referred to in the letters left by Jennie Serotta, a Roxbury girl who committed suicide last Thursday by gas, because she had been killed.

Up to a late hour last night there had been no identification of the body, although it was not believed that the suicide had any relationship to the Roxbury one.

A SERIOUS MISHAP

To the Taft Train Narrowly Avoided

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Oct. 18.—A serious mishap to President Taft's train was narrowly averted last night as it was crossing the desert 20 miles west of Kelo. A slipping fire on one of the trailer wheels of the locomotive was discovered by the engineer while a stop was being made for water. The fire was in such condition that it might have been thrown clear off the wheel in taking a curve at high speed. Mr. Taft's car was seventh in the long train. There was a delay of more than half an hour in getting a spare engine to the isolated spot, where the dangerous condition was discovered.

AN OPIUM RAID

DRUG PACKAGED AS NUTS AND COLD CREAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Deputy Surveyor Edward Norwood of the customs service went into the Boston cigar store at 256 West Thirty-seventh street yesterday and found a man who gave his name as John Godell selling Chinese nuts that had been carefully opened and filled with opium. Godell when arrested said he was merely lending the cigar counter while the man who owned the place was absent. Boston A1 was the only name by which Godell knew the proprietor, and said that he didn't know A1's present whereabouts.

While in the store the Deputy Surveyor found some other things that contained opium. Among them were numbers of small jars once used for cold cream. The jars had been made of wood and filled with the drug.

Godell was taken to the Greenwich street station. He will be arraigned in the federal court today.

JEWELER ROBBED

HE WAS HELD UP BY FOUR MEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Arnold Betts of 55 East 151st street, a jeweler who carries his stock in his pockets and does peripatetic business, told the police of the East 126th street station last night that four men had pounced on him in Park avenue between 10th and 11st streets and had robbed him of watches, diamonds and necklaces valued by him at $1000.

He said that he was returning from a jewelry wholesale jewelry house about 7 o'clock when he was held up. One man hit him a heavy blow in the stomach and when he got his wind back another had stuffed a handkerchief in his mouth, while a third sprang away with the jewelry. The fourth man seems to have bossed the job.

In their hurry the thieves, so Betts reported, overlooked $750 in cash which he had in his pockets. He gave the police a list of the stolen jewelry and the detectives went out to comb the pawnshops.

THE BLOOM OF YOUTH

(From Eastern Style Reporter)

Even with advancing age it is an easy matter for women to quickly regain that charming smoothness and delightful tint and youthful bloom to their age-matured or furrowed cheeks. Merely dissolve a small package of mayatone in one-half pint of witch-hazel, then freely apply this lotion to the face, neck and arms, and massage lightly until it disappears.

Continued using will gradually banish wrinkles, sallowness and blotches and give to the skin a delightful clearness and smoothness. "The mayatone is so soothing to tender skins, and its use discourages the growth of hair or fuzz, and removes pimples, blackheads and other facial blemishes. Such delightful results follow the use of the mayatone lotion that artificial aids to beauty are not required."

PROMOTER'S FEE

JAS. H. POST SAYS IT AMOUNTED TO $10,000,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Jas. H. Post, president of the National Sugar Refining company of New Jersey, who engineered the merger of the three sugar refining companies into the concern, was a witness yesterday before Vice Chancellor Stevens in Newark in the suit brought by preferred stockholders to compel the cancellation of $10,000,000 worth of common stock obtained by Mr. Post for the late Henry O. Havemeyer.

In his cross examination Mr. Post was asked by Richard V. Lindbury, of counsel for the complainants, whether he had informed the directors of the new National company about the common stock that was to be issued and who was to get it. Mr. Post replied that he told them that it was to be issued to him for the account of the people he represented. He said that people of the men engaged with him in the organization of the company asked him his associates were.

"I was very careful not to use the name of Mr. Havemeyer," Mr. Post said in answer to another question.

Refusing to further questions, Mr. Post said that the $10,000,000 of common stock really represented a "promoter's fee."

In answer to another question of Mr. Lindbury as to what had been the consideration for the $10,000,000 of stock, Mr. Post said: "It was a capitalization of the possible."

DOCK COMMISSION

Gov. Foss Picks Hugh Bancroft to Head It

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Governor Foss has picked Hugh Bancroft, the son of President Bancroft of the Boston Elevated railway, a practicing lawyer and editor of the Boston News Bureau, to head the Boston Dock Commission at $16,000 a year.

Because of the youth of Mr. Bancroft there has been a little question in certain quarters, but the governor is reported as being determined. He is willing to allow the nomination, which will have to go to the council, to hold over for a week or so, but those acquainted with him say he is absolutely determined on this choice.

John J. Martin, president of the Exchange Trust company, and also a high official in the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, is also to go on the board, to be one of the $1000 men.

It is also intimated that Henry C. Long, who was a candidate for the principal place, will also be named for a $1000 position, though a side suggestion is that he be made one of the executive officers of the new board.

The announcement of the selection of Hugh Bancroft is certain to cause considerable surprise, for his name is one of the very few which have not been mentioned for the position. At the annual meeting of the Fore River Ship Works, Henry C. Long, Lucius Tuttle, the former president of the Boston & Maine railroad, and Timothy E. Byrnes, vice president of the New Haven and Boston & Maine railroads, have been discussed as possibilities.

The list has been, though, that in most cases the men sought did not care to take on the work, or do it at the salary named.

FOR MAN CONVICTED OF STEALING AN AUTO

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Forged letters of recommendation and a forged chauffeur's license came to light in the trial of Daniel N. Malone, 20 years old, of Philadelphia, in the municipal court yesterday, when Judge Murray sentenced him to 18 months in jail for larceny of an automobile.

Judge Murray himself exposed the forgeries. After pleading guilty to stealing the automobile of John F. Evans, proprietor of the Evans house, last night, Malone handed the judge some letters of recommendation.

"If genuine these letters show that you should not be in the dock here on a charge of larceny," said Judge Murray. He then directed the court officer to have Malone write his signature. When this was done Judge Murray compared the signature with those in the letters of recommendation. He announced that the signatures were forgeries.

After examining the defendant's license to drive an automobile in New Jersey, Judge Murray announced: "You have erased another man's name here and you have substituted your own." Malone then broke down and admitted all the signatures to be false.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. George W. Hulehins and Miss Minnie Hight was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the house of the bride's mother, 118 D street, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Asa Reed Dilts. The couple were unattended and after a short wedding trip will reside in Lawrence. No cards.

CONWAY—MAHONEY

Mr. Roland Conway and Miss Katherine Mahoney of North Billerica were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at St. Andrew's church in that village, the ceremony being performed by Rev. E. A. Cornell, O. M. I.

The bride wore a gown of white silk and large picture hat. Miss Annie Mahoney, sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, was attired in a hand-some dress of cream colored silk and also wore a picture hat. Mr. Dennis J. Mahoney, a brother of the bride, acted as best man.

As the bridal couple entered the church, Lohengrin's wedding march was played by the church organist, Miss Ella Hoar, and as the couple left the church, strains of Mendelssohn's bridal chorus were played.

After the ceremony, the newly wedded couple and their relatives repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Mahoney, of Wilton street, where a wedding feast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Conway were the recipients of many beautiful and costly wedding gifts. They departed on an evening train for a honeymoon trip, which will include New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other points of interest. They will reside in Boston, where the bridegroom holds a responsible position with the Boston Elevated Railroad company.

LICENSE BOARD

FINDS THAT LIQUOR DEALER VIOLATED THE LAW

FITCHBURG, Oct. 18.—The license commissioners last night gave a hearing to J. T. Keefe, a wholesale liquor dealer at 361 Main street, on a complaint made by Patrolman Fred H. Estabrook, who charged that a plot of whiskey was sold to Katie Hopponen on Oct. 10 by a clerk in the Keefe store, while Hopponen was under the influence of liquor. Keefe was present at the hearing with counsel.

Patrolman Estabrook testified that Hopponen staggered before he went into the store. When Hopponen came out, the officer said, he placed him under arrest on a charge of drunkenness.

Officer H. H. Clifford, driver of the police ambulance, and Patrolman Valentin J. Cornier said Hopponen was so much under the influence of liquor that he could not walk alone.

Jeremiah Maroon, a clerk at the store of Keefe, admitted that he sold the pint of whiskey, but denied that Hopponen was drunk when the sale was made. He said that Hopponen gave him the money for the whiskey and that he appeared to be sober. He did not consider that Hopponen was drunk.

The commissioners voted unanimously to close the Keefe store for eight days as a punishment for violation of the terms of the license.

WOMAN SAYS THAT DINNER KILLED HER HUSBAND

MOUNT VERNON, Oct. 18.—Alleging that her husband, Charles Steward Batt of Fitchburg, died from the effects of eating something poisonous in a dining car of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, Mrs. Dorothy R. Batt has brought two actions against the company for $100,000 each in the supreme court of Westchester county. She sues both as the widow and as the administratrix of her husband's estate.

The case was removed yesterday from the Westchester court to the application of the defendants.

Mrs. Batt sets forth in the complaint that her husband on June 16, 1910, was a passenger on a Pennsylvania railroad train from Washington, D. C., to New York city and that while passing through the state of Delaware he had dinner in a dining car. She says that he was taken ill and that he died in New York on the following day.

when diverse economic forces are struggling with each other for the mastery in the state and where laws are enacted through the influence of one class or classes who are unwilling to accept them as rules of action because unconvinced of the wisdom or justice of the legislative policy which they embody.

"Yet a consideration of the nature of social organization will demonstrate the absolute necessity of all classes of society conforming to requirements prescribed by the duly constituted authorities, however wise or unwise those regulations may appear to those whose conduct is sought to be controlled by them."

Continuing, Mr. Wickersham expressed himself in favor of the extension of the parole law to include life prisoners and of leaving to all such the hope, perhaps in the dim distance but yet the hope, of a parole. The attorney-general said that since parole law was placed in operation last year but one single prisoner had violated his parole.

THE STATE CAMPAIGN

Democrats to Hold Rallies In Every City in the State

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—The "official" in a statement for the press. Either democratic campaign, conducted by the democratic state committee, will begin Saturday night with a "tremendous" rally in Tremont Temple. So the committee announced yesterday. The tour of the cape which members of the state ticket made last week and the western tour upon which Gov. Foss starts tonight were and will be considered unofficial, the committee states. But from Saturday until the polls close there will be ceaseless activity by the activity forces, composed of three staffs.

Eight or ten flying squadrons, the committee announces, will be one part of the plan of campaign.

The announcement of the state committee that the official campaign was to be started followed a conference of the party leaders and candidates with Gov. Foss at the state house. After the conference all was harmony, though previously there had been evidence of friction among the candidates and at state headquarters. A letter "understanding" had been reached with the governor, it was said, and the "official campaign" was ready for launching.

Tremont Temple Rally

The rally in Tremont Temple Saturday night will be the "first crash" in the campaign, the state committee says.

Sherrman L. Whipple or Louis D. Brandeis will speak. Besides Gov. Foss and all the candidates on the state ticket, Mayor Fitzgerald, Hon. Charles S. Hamlin and Hon. James H. Valley will also speak.

That same night there will be a rally in Faneuil hall for the Italian voters. Today Gov. Foss and David L. Watson, candidate for lieutenant governor, and other members of the state ticket will begin their unofficial trip westward, speaking tonight in the town halls in Warren, Palmer, Moulton and Ludlow. Tomorrow, the party will make an automobile tour, taking in Gorham, Ashfield, Conway, Denbigh, Windley and Bowley, speaking tomorrow night at Greenfield, Southbury Falls, Turners Falls and Mills Falls.

Official Campaign Plans

The statement issued by the democratic state committee, announcing its campaign plan, is, in part, as follows: "All the machinery of the state committee and the skill of eager volunteer assistants is now centered upon the official campaign. The campaign to date has received the closest attention and best consideration that could be spared from the official campaign by the state committee.

"Up to date and continuing until Saturday the campaign has been and will be simply a desire upon the part of the state committee to supply the local talent to see the candidates and their friends in action and has been no part of the official campaign.

"The official campaign has been worked out to a nicety of detail. The very minutia of it is indicative of the stupendous character of the work undertaken. The chiefs of the activity forces will be Chilton Loring and ex-Rip Thomas P. Riley. The former was the rally manager last year and the latter was the chairman of the democratic legislative campaign committee, which did such notable work in last year's campaign. These two men have a large corps of assistants composed of three different staffs.

Many Rallies to Be Held

The first staff is the political literary and material on which there are three of the best known newspapermen in Massachusetts.

The second is the speakers' staff, on which are representatives of organized labor, the direct legislative league, the public franchise league and men who have made a study of taxation and other public interest problems.

The third staff consists of a corps of active, well tried young men, headed by Senator Francis Quigley of Holyoke, Thomas Fay of Boston, and others.

Before and during Saturday night there will be many other rallies which will have the sanction and attention of the state committee, but are independent of the real campaign. After Saturday night the campaign committee has made arrangements to have rallies in every city and large center in the state and the rallies will increase in number from 25 on Monday night in different parts of the state to approximately 250 on the night before election.

A host of clever speakers have submitted themselves to the orders of the campaign committee and a wealth of material in the shape of short speeches is already for distribution. Town work which eight or ten flying squadrons headed by star spell-binders is only one part of the plans of the campaign.

GRAND EXHIBIT

NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRIAL AND EDUCATIONAL EXPOSITION

The verdict of the public and the press has been rendered upon the New England Industrial and Educational Exposition. By many who have seen all the expositions of recent years, it is pronounced unqualifiedly the best ever, as those who planned it always predicted it would be.

Its success is due chiefly to three things:

1st, it covers all New England thoroughly, being by no means local.

2nd, it shows graphically all the leading industries of the six states, not just a few.

3rd, it is interesting to people of all ages, occupations and conditions.

The latter point is one particularly to be emphasized. Although its purpose is serious and educational, as should be the purpose of every great undertaking, it is not a "dry-as-dust" show.

People who have entered the doors with the one idea of learning something, find that not only are they learning, but they are also having a highly good time.

People who care to be entertained find that they are not only enjoying themselves hugely, but are being instructed.

Such features as the great shoemaking exhibit, where every process may be seen, the old time spinning and weaving process, the cow barn occupied by the cattle, the other press, the aeroplane school, the printing office, the miniature electric railway connected with life size block signals with semaphores swinging up and down, the model dairy, the rubber shoe factory, the chocolate machinery, the sugar refinery, the life size telegraph and telephone poles strung with wires along the side of the hall—such things as these fascinate every one.

They are things that cannot be seen every day, and to have them, with a score of others, gathered together under one roof, is indeed exceptional.

Then there are such other striking features as Atwood's record breaking display, the marvelous collection of devices for preventing accidents, the display of vegetables, said to be the finest of its kind ever made, the Daniel Webster plant, the remarkable variety of up-to-date farm utensils, the beautiful motor boats and newest New England made automobiles, the jewelry display, the unique bill posting exhibit, where the posters are changed every day.

It is unnecessary to go further. Indeed, this is by no means intended to be anything even approaching a complete classification. It is simply a sketch to indicate why the public finds the present exposition superior to others.

GET LOVING CUPS

Awards Made to Sunday School Classes

A pretty gathering of boys took place at the Y. M. C. A. last night, the occasion being the presentation of loving cups to the boys who successfully passed examinations in Bible study, last spring, when an effort was made to induce more effective Bible study among the boys in Sunday school classes in the various churches of the city.

The association offered to give a "shield" and individual loving cups to the boys in the class which made the best record in attendance and in passes in an examination on regular Sunday school lessons.

The attendance numbered over 100 boys and a dainty supper was served. Classes from eight different Sunday schools were represented in the effort, which was finally won by the Rev. J. T. Carleton's class of older boys, at the Centralville M. E. church, and the latter were so closely followed by the boys of the Fifth Street Baptist church, that they too were awarded cups.

The cups were presented by Geo. H. Taylor, superintendent of the First Baptist Sunday school, and in the course of the evening remarks were made by Rev. E. A. Macdonald of the Fifth Street Baptist church, Rev. F. C. Alger of the Parkview church, and the Rev. S. W. Cummings of the First Baptist church. Howard Hands spoke for the boys.

The boys who have been studying at the association building the past year were also rewarded by the same method, nine boys receiving loving cups.

The boys who were in Rev. J. T. Carleton's class receiving cups were: Frank W. Callahan, Joseph Garmon, Walter Coburn and Stanley Worth. The Fifth Street Baptist class boys were: Frank Goddard, Paul Hutchinson, Ralph Smith, Eugene P. Hurd and Donald Pratt. David Waring was the teacher.

The Y. M. C. A. boys who obtained cups were: Win. F. Atwood, Frederick Barrows, J. Milton Washburn, Samuel Babikian, Carter Hoyt, Roland E. Falls and Earl Leadbetter.

In the Sunday school classes two boys were given honorable mention for having obtained 100 per cent. They were: Raymond Harris, of Mrs. Wiggin's class, and Malcolm McKinley, taught by Mrs. S. A. Jackson.

DOCTOR IS HELD

HE IS CHARGED WITH PASSING WORTHLESS CHECKS

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 18.—Dr. Burdette O'Connor, who was the assistant coach of the New Bedford high school football team this fall, and who claims that he is a graduate of Princeton, and the choice of some writers for a back-field position on all American football teams in the late 80's, was arrested yesterday, charged with the larceny of $25 from Dr. D. E. Cone of Fall River. He was taken to Fall River police headquarters where he was furnished for him by Thomas A. Cunniff.

Dr. Cone, it is alleged, cashed a check for $25 for Dr. O'Connor, which later proved to be worthless, on April 3. The check was drawn on the Safe Deposit bank of Pottsville, Pa., where Dr. O'Connor at one time claimed he lived.

Complaint was at once made to the police, but Dr. O'Connor was on a whaling cruise on the schooner Ellen Swift, returning about two months ago. Later it was learned that Dr. O'Connor could be found in New Bedford, and the arrest was made.

NO. CHELMSFORD

BOARD OF TRADE TRANSACTED CONSIDERABLE BUSINESS

The members of the North Chelmsford board of trade held their regular meeting Monday night in the town hall and transacted considerable important business. The meeting was presided over by Col. Royal S. Ripley.

Several committee reports were presented, among them being that of the committee on town affairs, Albert Stophard, chairman. This report dealt with the work that the committee has done with regard to finding suitable sites for the two concerns that had written to the board for information in this respect. The committee has been successful in finding one location which they thought would meet the requirements of one of the firms, but they are still endeavoring to find a suitable building which would answer the purpose of the other concern. The committee was instructed to enter into communication with the representatives of these two industries with a view to furnishing them with all the needed information in answer to their request.

The unsanitary conditions alleged to be existing at the rendering works of Whitman & Pratt at West Chelmsford was again the topic of much comment and discussion, and it was finally agreed to give the said firm 30 days to

A STRANGE COMPACT

Entered Into by Man and His Wife

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Philip Hiehorn, whose beautiful young wife vanished last December coincident with the disappearance of Horace Wylie, made yesterday his first statement concerning the elopement which so deeply stirred society circles in Washington. Mr. Hiehorn is at his mother's summer home, Thora Cliff, in Black Rock, Conn. His four-year-old daughter is with him. They have been there since June in pursuance of a remarkable unwritten agreement, between husband and wife, which provides that they remain apart for six months before deciding on permanent separation or complete reconciliation.

"I have not directly or indirectly communicated with my wife since her return to Washington last spring," said Mr. Hiehorn. "We did not meet then—in fact, I have not seen her since the unhappy event occurred, and she has not communicated with me since last May."

"At the time of her return, I would have agreed to a reconciliation. But the judgment of my mother and my sister, while most kindly towards my wife, was that we should live entirely apart for half a year, in which period we should be able to consider our future relationship with calm deliberation and make our final decision. It was arranged that my wife should remain in the home of her mother, Mrs. Hoyt, at Washington, while I should come here."

"My relatives believed that if Mrs. Hiehorn could forget other influences at the end of that period, and if I felt as I did when she returned, a reconciliation would be wise and successful. 'If my wife has gone away again, it is news to me. But I have had many surprises since last December. I do not know what is happening or what has happened that my wife was with her mother in Washington, but it is possible that they are out of the city. I have heard, indeed, that the boys were somewhere in Massachusetts, but whether or not my wife is with them I cannot say.'

"I intend to return to Washington shortly, and take up my duties there once more. I have found relief from sorrow, and I believe I am a stronger man than I was before. But the future I cannot forecast. I do not know how the terrible affair will end."

Mr. Hiehorn shows plainly that he is a man who has been through deep suffering, but who has been leading a secluded life for five months, and it is said, has been preparing to return to Washington within a week or two, ready to rejoin his wife if her decision is the same as his.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The Presbyterian synod in session here today elected Rev. Martin Kneeland, D. D., of Boston as moderator and Rev. J. C. Glover and Rev. Feuss, both of Syracuse, as temporary clerks. This afternoon the delegates will be tendered a reception at the home of Secretary of State for President Lincoln, William E. Seward, General and Mrs. Seward acting as hosts.

STRUCK BY AUTO

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Stepping in front of an automobile operated by Robert Atkinson, Thomas Kirk was run down and probably fatally injured early today. Atkinson was placed under arrest, but was later released. Kirk is 45 years old and so far as the police can ascertain is alone in this world and friendless.

CHINESE TROOPS

Continued

AMERICAN CONSUL

SAYS THAT FIRING WAS BEGUN THIS MORNING

PERKING, Oct. 18.—American Consul General Green telegraphs today from Hankow as follows:

"Firing between the rebels and imperialists aided by the ships began at 7:30 o'clock this morning near the river and the railroad station."

The railroad station is on the north bank of the Han river west of Hankow.

The British consul general at Hankow telegraphed his location here last evening that the women and children were forced to leave Hankow.

THE FOREIGNERS

IN CHINA BELIEVED TO BE IN DANGER

TOKIO, Oct. 18.—Despite the assurances given both by the Chinese government and the revolutionary leaders in the Central Chinese provinces that the rights of foreigners would be respected, officers here regard the situation as likely to develop phases alarming to outside nations. The maintenance of a scrupulous impartiality will be very difficult at times and it is certain that any suspicion of interference on the part of foreigners would arouse tremendous indignation among the Chinese.

Some feeling among Japanese has already been noted at Peking where Chinese merchants and financiers have freely asserted that Japan incited the revolution in order to create a crisis which would prevent the American-European loan. In revolutionary circles on the other hand, reports are being circulated that Japan is aiding the imperial government and this impression has already created an antagonism against Japan in the south and is said to have resulted in the beginning of an anti-Japanese boycott in South China. Still another Chinese rumor which is likely to cause trouble for Americans is to the effect that the United States encouraged the revolution by its insistence upon the hated railroad loan.

AMOY THREATENED

RESIDENTS FEAR THE CITY WILL BE SEIZED

AMOY, China, Oct. 18.—The war scare reached this city today through the receipt by several native commercial organizations of despatches warning them that Amoy was to be seized shortly by the revolutionary leaders. The despatches were unsigned but purported to come from revolutionary headquarters. They contained assurances that there would be no interference with commercial interests. It is generally believed that any successful movement against Amoy must come from within the city as its isolation on a strongly fortified island makes its position apparently impregnable to assault from without.

LIVELY FIGHTING

2,000 IMPERIAL TROOPS AND 10,000 REBELS ENGAGED

HANKOW, Oct. 18.—A general engagement between the revolutionary army and the imperial forces was precipitated on the waterfront here early today by the attempt of Admiral Sui Chen Ping to land a large body of troops for the reinforcement of General Chang Piao. Chang Piao, who, although officially dismissed by the Peking government, still retains his command, was entrenched with several hundred of the native army near the city.

It was just before daybreak that Admiral Sui ordered his cruisers to disembark their soldiers near Chang's position.

The revolutionists on the Wu Chang fortifications immediately detected the movement and opened a hot fire with their artillery. The cruisers and gunboats in the river replied with a rain of shells which diverted the attention of the Wu Chang artillerymen and essentially covered the landing of the troops. Scattered bodies of revolutionists on both sides of the river joined in the fighting and by mid-forenoon it was estimated that 2,000 imperial troops and nearly 10,000 rebels were engaged.

The warships used up a large quantity of ammunition but the effectiveness of their fire was hampered by their fear of endangering the foreign concessions.

THE REBELS

REPORTED TO HAVE CAPTURED NANKING AND KIU-KANG

SHANGHAI, Oct. 18.—It is reported here that the rebels have captured both Nanking and Kiu-Kang but official confirmation is lacking. It is stated that there have been a number of secessions from the government troops.

BIRTH OF CONFUCIUS

WAS CELEBRATED IN HONG KONG TODAY

HONG KONG, Oct. 18.—The anniversary of the birth of Confucius was celebrated as a general holiday today. The imperial flag was raised over a few shops in the morning, but the crowds yelled, "Down with the Manchus" until the flag was lowered.

BRITISH OFFICER

ASSUMES COMMAND OVER THE MARINE FORCE

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—The commander of the German cruiser Leipzig at Hankow reports as follows:

"The day and night passed quietly. The rebels withdrew. The British vice admiral, Sir Alfred L. Winslow, arrived and assumed as senior officer the command over the marine forces ashore and ashore assembled before Hankow."

The admiralty comments on the fact that the message gives no further information regarding yesterday's official advice, which stated that a collision had occurred between a German landing detachment and a Chinese mob as indicating that the protective measures taken by the Germans were brief and successful and that the incidents were of no great importance.

BATTLESHIP MAINE

Was Destroyed by Mine, Says Expert

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Washington L. Capps, former chief constructor of the navy, has submitted a report to Secretary Meyer tending to corroborate the opinion of the court of inquiry that the battleship Maine was destroyed in Havana harbor by an external explosion.

Mr. Capps was sent to Havana by Secretary Meyer to identify certain parts of the wreckage which had been exposed through the lowering of the water in the cofferdam surrounding the Maine.

The testimony before the court of inquiry, which met in 1908 immediately following the destruction of the vessel, was based upon the reports of naval and civilian divers who examined the hull. Mr. Capps, however, had much better opportunity to inspect the wreck. He was especially familiar with the Maine's construction, having superintended her building, and was selected for this reason by Mr. Meyer.

His report will probably be made public and naval officers who have read it say that Mr. Capps confirms the decision of the court of inquiry that the condition of the wreckage leads to the conclusion that the primary explosion was beneath the hull of the Maine at about frame 18.

Since the recent destruction of the French battleship Liberté and the accident on the Jena several years ago there have been many references in the newspapers and technical periodicals suggesting an analogy between the French disasters and the explosion which destroyed the Maine. The Jena and Liberté accidents were probably due to the decomposition and spontaneous combustion of smokeless powder of a type designated as "B" and of old manufacture. A search of the records of the bureau of ordnance, made by order of Secretary Meyer, brought out the fact that no smokeless powder of this kind was in the magazines of the Maine at the time of her destruction.

"It is to be deplored," said Secretary Meyer yesterday, "that parallels have been drawn between these two disasters to French vessels and accidents which unfortunately occurred in the United States navy in which the combustion of powder was the known or alleged cause of the destruction of vessels or loss of life. On February 15, 1908, the U. S. S. Maine was destroyed by an explosion in the harbor of Havana. The cause of the explosion which destroyed her has never been ascertained definitely, but the naval court of inquiry which investigated the circumstances reported that the initial explosion was due to a mine or other cause external to the ship."

"In spite of these facts statements are frequently made in the press and elsewhere that the destruction of the Maine was or may have been due to spontaneous combustion of smokeless powder on board. That such could not conceivably have been the case is shown by the fact that there was no smokeless powder on board the Maine at the time of the explosion. This fact is a matter of record in the bureau of ordnance, where an accurate record is kept of the distribution of all powder belonging to the navy."

BASEMENT

POLICEMAN SUSPENDED

He Was Charged With Conduct Unbecoming an Officer

Patrolman Frank J. Donovan was charged and ordered that he be suspended for a term of six months dating from October 4, 1911, to April 4, 1912.

The hearing lasted for nearly three hours but the nature of the testimony offered was such that the greater part of the hearing the board went into executive session and after deliberation found the respondent guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer. Mrs. Marietta Horne, stated that the officer entered her house without permission and after delivering a message became unduly familiar with her and used improper language in her presence.

Patrolman Donovan entered a plea of not guilty, admitting the truth of a part of the testimony offered by the complainant, but denying the greater part of it.

The first witness called was Mrs. Horne, who testified that the respondent called at her home between 8 and 9 o'clock on the night of October 2. She was in bed at the time and did not answer the first knock on the door as she thought it was her daughter who had gone to the drug store to have her arm treated, the latter having been injured as a result of falling from a bicycle.

Upon hearing a second knock on the door she, attired in a night robe, went down stairs and opened the door. Seeing a policeman there she closed the door and went to her room and partially clothed herself, before allowing him to enter. When she finally entered the house he told her that her daughter had gone to the hospital to have her arm treated and that he had volunteered to come and tell Mrs. Horne so she wouldn't worry. The witness then went on to testify that the officer put his arm around her and made insulting remarks as well as telling her an indecent story.

Mrs. Horne said she broke away from the officer and ran to the bedroom where her children were sleeping, telling the officer to go away.

Mrs. Horne's daughter, eight years, corroborated the testimony offered by her mother.

Sgt. Edmund Welch testified that Patrolman Donovan admitted that part of the story was the truth and Deputy Hugh Downey, who was present when the complaint was made, corroborated the testimony of his superior officer.

Patrolman Donovan testifying in his own behalf told his story starting from the time he met the daughter, Bertha, in Pawtucket square where he was on duty, and advised her to go to the hospital.

He said he went into the house on Mrs. Horne's invitation. He claimed that Mrs. Horne knew him years ago when he lived near her in Pawtucket, and that she remarked on his improved health, and asked after his family affairs.

The officer here admitted the truth of the part of the testimony offered, but gave other testimony in his own defense.

The board took the case under consideration, and after an hour or more of discussion, announced the decision as stated above.

The minor licenses granted were as follows: Common victualler—George W. Chapman, 321-331 Middlesex street; Express, Harries Aggelos, 75 Carroll street; Adams Express company, 15 Arch street; billiard and pool, John Frain, 100 Merrimack street; Fred H. Wolfe, 189 Middlesex street.

BOY SET FIRES

He Said He Wanted to Lose His Job

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Mysterious fires in lockers at the B. A. A. clubhouse gymnasium on Essex street last week were explained in a confession yesterday by 15-year-old Francis McKenna of 289 West Fourth street, South Boston.

"I set the fires because I wanted to lose my job at the B. A. A. and go to New York," he declared.

He was surrendered by probation officer in the superior criminal court and sentenced by Judge Sanderson to the Suffolk school for boys at Rainsford Island.

His confession, made before a justice of the peace, signed and read by Judge Sanderson was, in part:

"After lighting a cigar I threw it into locker No. 96, belonging to Mr. Morrison. I then called to the office, and a clerk came up, and we put it out easily. I thought it was going to be more of a fire than it was. About 20 minutes later I looked in locker No. 126, saw there were some clothes in it, held a match to a sweater in it, it caught fire, then I closed the locker and walked into the gymnasium.

"The only reason I had for setting the fire was that I wanted to get through with the job and to go to New York, but my mother would not allow me to."

The boy was put on probation in the juvenile court a year ago for receiving stolen property. He was sent to the Suffolk school for boys in New York.

SUPREME COURT

GIVES DECISION UPHOLDING RULE AGAINST DOGS

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—The full bench of the supreme court, in the case of Toscoe J. Hull against the Boston & Maine, sustained, yesterday, the regulations of the road excluding dogs from passenger cars, but permitting them to be carried in baggage cars on payment of fare.

Hull sued for assault and false imprisonment. His wife had a dog in her lap. The conductor said it must ride in the baggage car. Mr. Hull refused to permit it. The conductor said later there was 15 cents fare due on the dog and that Mr. Hull would have to get off at the next station. Mr. Hull agreed to pay, but the conductor insisted on him getting off. Mr. Hull refused, and was placed under arrest for "evading a fare."

At the trial the judge ruled that the conductor should be liable only for excessive force in enforcing the rule. It was held that the plaintiff was not guilty of an evasion of fare, and that there was no justification for his arrest without a warrant. He gets a new trial.

WOMAN WAS SLAIN

That is Theory of the Police in the Linnell Case

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Although Medical Examiner Leary declared officially Sunday afternoon that Miss Avis Linnell, known among her associates at the Boston Young Women's Christian Association rooms at 68 Warren street and at the New England Conservatory of Music as Alice Linnell, committed suicide, the police began an investigation yesterday on the theory that she died from the effects of a drug taken to produce certain physical effects rather than death.

Police officers of Boston and Cambridge began a systematic inquiry among drug stores to learn, if possible, who had recently purchased cyanide of potassium, the drug that killed Miss Linnell. A clew makes them suspect that the drug was sent to her to be taken by her as medicine.

Mr. Dugan's Theories

Deputy Superintendent Dugan of the bureau of criminal investigation said last night that if the fatal dose had been given Miss Linnell by a person knowing its character a charge of murder in the first degree could be pressed.

He declared that it was altogether improbable that the poison had been given Miss Linnell either through the mistake of a drug clerk or an acquaintance, and remarked that the indications in the case were that her death was not intentional. He admitted that she might have arranged her surroundings so that it would appear that she had committed suicide, so as to shield her family from a worse scandal.

"But no person is under suspicion," added Mr. Dugan, "and I cast no reflection upon anyone."

It was rumored at police headquarters that the investigation of the case would take an officer to Hyannisport today.

Dr. Leary Explains Death

Medical Examiner Leary gave out a statement yesterday in the case, supplementary to the one he made Sunday afternoon. In his latest report he described in detail the conditions under which the body was found. Further he said:

"The brother-in-law of the girl has informed me that Miss Linnell made an attempt at suicide. The conditions surrounding the body are consistent with the belief that she did not intend committing suicide."

"Miss Linnell came to her death from cyanide of potassium poisoning, and lived 25 minutes after taking the drug, the action of which is slower than prussic acid, owing to the fact that it has to be broken up by dissolving. The quantity she took was rather small, and had been contained in an unmarked piece of white paper."

Dr. Leary said he would not make any further statement regarding the case until the police investigation should be concluded.

Church Committee Meets

The finance committee of the Emmanuel Baptist church of Cambridge, of which the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, formerly engaged to marry Miss Linnell, is pastor, held a meeting at the church last night. Although it had been stated that the connection of Mr. Richeson's name with that of the dead girl would be discussed, after the meeting Thos. N. Rumney, who acted as chairman, said that the matter had not been mentioned during the session.

There is to be a regular meeting of the committee next week, and Mr. Rumney said that at that meeting some action was likely to be taken regarding the pastor's position in the affair.

Before last evening's committee meeting began several members of the congregation went to the church to protest against any action being taken by that or any other committee regarding the Linnell matter at this time.

William T. Wilson, a member of the committee, desired that some action should be taken. "I feel," he said, "that an investigation should be made to find out whether Dr. Richeson kept up his acquaintance with Miss Linnell after the engagement to her was broken off. Mr. Wilson said that he had known of his pastor's engagement to Miss Linnell, and that the minister himself had told him of its termination."

Asks Mr. Richeson to Resign

Mr. Wilson added that he wrote a letter yesterday to Dr. Richeson, advising him to resign his pastorate. He said that in the letter he told the pastor that it would be much better for him and for the church if he would resign. He said that he wrote the letter wholly upon his own initiative and as a member of the church.

"I do not believe that the girl's parents will drop the case where I think that we should wait until the medical examiner and the police make their report on their investigation."

Asked whether Dr. Richeson would be at the Friday evening prayer meeting or at the Sunday services, Mr. Rumney said he did not think he would be. If the pastor didn't come to come, he said, he could send a substitute. He supposed he would do that next Sunday.

Mr. Richeson is said to be still at the home of his fiancée in Brookline. No reporters were permitted to talk to him, and it was said that he was in a nervous condition and under the care of a physician.

SUES FOR $2000

FAMOUS SLAVE'S DAUGHTER IS THE PLAINTIFF

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—A suit for $2000 for services as housekeeper for Albert B. Currier during the 12 years prior to his death in 1906 was brought yesterday by Miss Anna E. Hudson, daughter of "Relsy Blakey," one of the most famous slaves of the Civil war and known as "William Lloyd Garrison's New Year's Gift."

Miss Hudson testified that Mr. Currier told her that if she would work for him till his death he would give her $2000. She expected that such an arrangement had been made in the will, which was executed by his brother, Sylvanus D. Currier of Youngstown, O. The amount disposed of being $14,000. Police Matron Abbie Jackson and Patrolman Richard St. Lombard of the Joy street station testified to her good character and to her services in the Currier household.

The odd name of "William Lloyd Garrison's New Year's Gift" was given

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. Arthur Vigeant and Miss Alice Choudhury took place this morning in the private chapel of St. Joseph's rectory. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 8 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Brin-lard, O. M. L., and the young couple were attended by their respective fathers, Messrs. Ambrose Vigeant and Edward Choudhury. After the ceremony the party retired to the home of the bride's parents, 22 Crawford street, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate families.

Mr. and Mrs. Vigeant, who were the recipients of many costly gifts, left on a short bridal tour, including Boston and other points of interest in the state.

FORGET—RICHARD

A pretty wedding was celebrated this morning at St. Joseph's church, the contracting couple being Mr. Henri Forget and Miss Marie V. Richard. The ceremony was performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 7:30 o'clock by Rev.
Mr. Guillelme, O. M. L., a relative of the bride. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Joseph Forget, while the bride's witness was her father, G.
W. Richard. The attendance in church was very large, for the young couple are well known in this city.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, 734 Merrimack street, where a number of relatives and intimate friends of the contracting couple had gathered to congratulate the newly weds. Mr. and Mrs. Forget left on a noon train for a short bridal tour, being given a royal

OUST WATER BOARD

Continued
At 9:45, a 10-minute recess was voted.
The board reconvened at 10:12 o'clock. Minor petitions were referred to their respective committees.
A petition that Chase avenue be laid out and accepted and a petition that Stratham street be laid out and accepted were referred to the committee on streets.

The mayor's appointments of Richard J. Murtha, Bradley A. Messer and William B. Peters to be wardens of the city and ward and managers of lumber were confirmed.
The order calling meetings of voters for the state election on November 7, was read and adopted.

The Water Board Matter

Alderman Barrett at this point asked a question of privilege and upon its being granted he spoke as follows:
In my opinion the most serious question that confronts the people of Lowell at the present time is the water question. On every side unusual and general complaints are being heard and have been heard for six months relative to our water supply. It is unfit to drink, unfit to bathe in, and unfit for the washing of clothes. It has entailed an enormously increased expense on every water taker in Lowell.
It has increased the use of water and consequently the water bills by reason of the fact that people have the water running for hours at a time in the hope of getting some fit for use; it has ruined clothing and destroyed household utensils, necessitating an increased and undesired expense to every householder in Lowell. I believe after all that regardless of what the state board of health or the Chicago expert who reported to the local water board may say, that this water which will via line and injure cooking utensils must be injurious to the human stomach. The citizens have recently provided $50,000 for a new pump which is pumping dirty water into every home in Lowell. After spending nearly $10,- 000,000 in the construction of a water plant and nearly $40,000 within a year, if the best thing the water board can do to remedy the existing evil is to tell us to wait until the cold weather comes the time has come for a change.

"My proposed action might at first appear drastic, but considering the health and pocketbooks of 100,000 people we should not consider the politics or personality of men, but should act a water board that can make good, irrespective of who constitutes it. I am reminded of the words of a poem on the Declaration of Independence in which appears the line: 'When a nation's life is at hazard, we've no time to think of men,' and the poet's thought may be aptly applied to the present situation. On several occasions have criticized the conduct and methods of the water board, as a public department, not as a quarter of men and results have amply shown that the criticism was not without foundation. I believe that the first duty of the water board is to provide a supply of pure water rather than an extravagant and elaborate means of purveying a supply of impure water.

Half a year has elapsed since the complaints were first raised against the impure supply and since the attention of the water board was first called to existing conditions and now after six long months of discomfort and expense, nauseating drinking water, soiled linen and filthy cooking utensils, we are still waiting for the water board's only remedy—cold weather, which may or may not remedy conditions and which the $100,000 voted the water board to improve the supply cannot bring here a day sooner. The increased living expense of the entire public as the result of these conditions is incalculable and is a burden which by no means should the public be made to bear. The water board has demonstrated without any doubt its inability to handle the situation and the time has come for the city government as the direct representatives of the people to take the matter into their own hands. Therefore, I will offer a motion that His Honor, the mayor, be requested to demand the immediate resignations of the members of the present water board. If this motion prevails at the next meeting I will offer an order that the mayor appoint a commission of five competent men to examine into the condition of the Lowell water system and report what means are necessary and what action to be taken to provide a proper water supply for the city of Lowell."

Mr. Barrett to illustrate what he meant by such a commission suggested the names of Prof. Olney of the Textile school, Mr. Safford of the Locks and Canals, and several consulting engineers connected with concerns that construct and operate water supplies.
Chairman Gallagher said a two-thirds vote would be required to pass the motion out of its regular order.
Alderman Daly thought the action a little strong, although he would favor an investigation, if the members of the board are given a chance to state their position in the matter. The chairman ruled that no second would be needed to bring the matter to the attention of the board if taken up in its place, after regular business had been transacted.
Minor business, petitions, notices of personal injury, etc., were read and referred to their committees.

A joint order to borrow $5000 for the lands and buildings department was referred to the committee on appropriations in concurrence.

Further Criticism

Alderman Barrett then called for an expression of opinion from the other members and referring to the water board again said that the board had found it necessary to go to Boston to get an engineer for the construction of a $14,000 building on the boulevard. He stated that if the city engineer's department was not competent to build such a building that department should be closed.

Alderman Flanagan desired that the members of the water board be given an opportunity to defend themselves.
Alderman Connors said that the water board had not appealed very strongly to him but he thought that the members should be heard from before action was taken on the motion.
Alderman Barrett said that he had been in Boston specially to look up the matter of a good water supply that he had been to the offices of the Metropolitan Water Co.
He said there is no animus against the members of the board. Mr. Crawford of the water department had told him that there had been many hundreds of complaints against the water. "About the only men who are getting any benefits from the water supply of Lowell, are those who have pumps to sell the city and those who sell spring water to the citizens of Lowell," he said.
Alderman Flanagan was called to

NIX-NO-NEVER-NOT

the chair and Chairman Gallagher taking the floor, spoke as follows:
"I am opposed to the order. I had these conditions described in mind when I voted to appropriate $100,000 for new wells, a new reservoir and a new pump. Until such time as that is spent and no improvement is shown in the water I shall not favor this matter of asking the water board to resign. I could not so vote and feel that I had lived up to my oath of office. I do not favor wasting money and to spend money to hire a commission to investigate the matter I consider at this time would be such waste."

It was moved that when the board adjourn, it do so until next Tuesday night.

Alderman Barrett wanted a year and may vote on his motion but the motion was laid on the table.
Mr. Flanagan moved that the clerk notify the members of the water board to be present at the next meeting. It was so voted.
A joint resolution to widen Rogers street from Knapp avenue to Boylston street was ordered to lay in the city clerk's office for seven days.
A joint resolution to accept State street was ordered to lay seven days in the city clerk's office.
The council's choice of Homer L. P.
Turcotte for city messenger was announced but no action was taken.

The sequel to the celebrated banquet held at a coffee house in upper Market street on the night of August 15th came this morning in police court when Vasilios Pappavasiliou appeared before Judge Bradley on a complaint charging him with receiving stolen property. He entered a plea of not guilty but after a hearing was found guilty and sentenced to four months in jail.

The substance of the testimony of the government's witnesses was that Geo.
Eliopoulos attended the banquet and while there was relieved of a pocketbook containing about $50 in money, a precious stone valued at about $25 and a share in a bank in Greece, which was valued at about $100. Nicholas J.
Zachares, who was one of the waiters, was suspected of the larceny and later he was arrested and although he pleaded not guilty he was found guilty and sentenced to 15 months in the house of correction from which sentence he appealed, but when he appeared before the superior court the judge confirmed the sentence imposed in the lower court. Zachares finding that he had reached the end of his rope confessed that he had taken the pocketbook, but said that he had divided the spoils with Antonios Tsinitades and the man who appeared in court this morning.

Tsinitades was arrested and tried on a complaint charging him with receiving stolen property, found guilty and sentenced to four months in jail, being held under the direction of Henry Curry, with Richard Noonan as accompanied, and indications point to an

Auction Sale of 35 Holstein Cows

THURSDAY, OCT. 19, 1911, AT 10.30 A. M.

AT W. A. BEER'S PLACE, BILLERICA CENTRE, MASS.

Frank Roberts of Utica, N. Y., has consigned 35 cows to be sold without limit, to the highest bidder, and every cow will positively be sold. They are without doubt the best lot of cows that have been offered at public auction by anyone except a breeder of thoroughbred stock, in this section. There are 20 cows in this lot that will freshen in 10 or 12 days, large, young and handsome; also some due Nov. 1; several that are now fresh. You will find cows in this lot that will weigh from 1200 to 1400 lbs. each, from 4 to 6 years old and have records of 60 to 75 lbs. of milk per day. For a person that wishes to secure cows that are young, good size and heavy milkers, this is a chance that you will seldom find, to buy this class of cows at public auction.

A BIG REGISTRATION

This Year's List Greater Than Last Year

The last day of registration prior to the state election began at noon today and will last until 10 o'clock. The last day started in quite briskly though the big crowd is not expected until tonight. Up to today the total registration for the city was 14,937 against 14,866 for the state election last year, a gain of 71 without today's additions. One of the clerks who has worked on registration for many years states that to have more on the list for a state election in an off year than in a congressional year is unprecedented, yet such is the fact this year.

THE McNAMARA JURY

May Not be Chosen For a Month

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 18.—Notwithstanding the fact that the defense in the McNamara trial at the opening of court today had tentatively accepted six talesmen, the prospects for the final empaneling of a jury within a period of less than a month were not considered bright.

Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for James B. McNamara, said the defense would continue to examine for cause the remaining veniremen but would return each day with a few questions to the talesmen previously accepted.

Two important principles have been acknowledged in court by the defense in its examination of talesmen. In the first place any veniremen who have been prejudiced against labor unions will be challenged. Again, any man who, on investigation, of his own accord has reached an immovable opinion that the Times building was destroyed by dynamite likewise will be considered by the defense as hostile to its cause.

The prosecution will just as vigorously oppose any talesmen being sworn as jurors who are fixed in their idea that the Times disaster was caused by a gas explosion. The prosecution also, according to a declaration by District Attorney Fredericks today, will oppose challenges of union labor. The question of political bias and socialism also will be raised.

The trial, in fact, though based on indictments for murder preferred against James B. McNamara as an individual, has been outlined by the defense as chiefly a struggle between capital and labor.

It is said on good authority that James B. McNamara probably never would go on the witness stand.

PROVIDENCE MAN

Charged With Using Overruled Exception of the Defendant

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, Henry Clay of Providence was arrested today in the federal building. As an advertised clairvoyant, the man is alleged to have swindled Mrs. Caroline Shippe of Providence out of several hundred dollars. She claims that she gave him the money a few years ago for articles which he claimed would bring her almost anything she desired. When brought before United States Commissioner Hayes, Clay was held in $500 for a hearing on Friday. Clay was also known, it is said, as King, Anderson and G. H. Bradford.

THE SUPERIOR COURT

Suit Against the Belvidere Woolen Mfg. Co. on Trial

The case of Brooks vs. Boston & Northern Street Railway Co., in an action of tort for alleged injuries received by the plaintiff while riding on a car of the defendant company, came to a close yesterday afternoon in superior court, when Judge King ordered a verdict in favor of the defendant company, the said case to be reported to the supreme court.

Two cases of Taylor vs. Belvidere Woolen Manufacturing Co. were then opened for trial together. The two cases grow out of the same accident. William A. Taylor, the plaintiff, claims that on November 11, 1909, he was working for the defendant company, and while cleaning out a picker, his right arm was caught in the machine and torn off above the elbow. Negligence and defective machinery are alleged, the plaintiff claiming that because of its defect, the machine started of its own accord, while he was engaged in cleaning it out. Special damages are claimed on the ground that the plaintiff was a musician and was intending to make music his profession, being somewhat skilled as a pianist.

The second suit is brought by the father, Eugene Taylor, to recover for loss of his son's services. Francis W. and Stanley E. Quinn for the plaintiff; F. E. Dunbar, John J. Rogers and Arthur C. Spaulding for the defendant.

MEMBERS OF THE WATER BOARD

Wants Mayor to Demand Resignation of the Members of the Water Board

Starting out quietly with only a comparatively calm hearing on a street railroad matter to engage their attention, the board of aldermen wound up their meeting with one of the biggest surprises of the year before them for their consideration, for the hearing on the Andover street car service had hardly closed when Alderman Andrew E. Barrett threw a bombshell into the board by making an attack on the water board, in the course of which he introduced a motion requesting the mayor to ask for the resignations of the members of the water board, stating that in the event of this going through he would introduce an order for a competent commission to state just what could be done to give the citizens of Lowell a good water supply.

Before the members of the board could recover from their surprise, Alderman Barrett called for their views on the matter. Some spoke, while the others were not prepared to express themselves at that time. Alderman Gallagher asked that the water board be given a chance to spend the $100,000 voted them to improve the supply to see if they could make good. Alderman Connors was not prepared to state at that time whether he would favor Alderman Barrett's motion or not, but did not commit himself either way. Alderman Daly thought the motion a little strong, though he would favor an investigation. Alderman Connors wanted the water board heard from. Finally, Alderman Barrett's motion was tabled with the understanding that a special meeting will be held next Tuesday evening when the members of the water board will appear before the board and explain their position.

Alderman Barrett throughout his remarks endeavored to impress the members of the board with the fact that his remarks were purely impersonal and were aimed at the water board as a department of the city and not at any individual.

The hearing and the water board matter kept the board in session until nearly midnight and then adjourned without taking any action on the contest for city messenger.

In the street railway matter the board realizing that it had power only to recommend, appointed a committee to consult with the street railway authorities relative to a betterment of conditions.

The Railway Hearing
The board came to order at 8.35, and the first business was the hearing on the resolution relative to the granting of transfers on the Andover street line as far as the end of the line.

Alderman Rountree, who introduced the resolution, was the first speaker.

and he stated that as he lived in that particular district he had heard numerous complaints not only as to poor accommodations on that line but in the matter of transfers, the transfers at present being good only as far as the blacksmith shop in Andover street, those who desired to ride to the end of the line, a comparatively short distance away, being compelled to pay another fare. He believed also that the public would be greatly accommodated if the cars were run on 20-minute time.

School Children Affected
Rev. Mr. Bishop of Tewksbury and Prof. Hugh J. Molloy of the Normal school appeared in behalf of the children and students attending schools in Lowell. Tewksbury children coming to Lowell to school are obliged to pay two fares. Supt. Chase of the Tewksbury schools considered the extra fare one of the meanest impositions he had ever known. He said he would see the company bankrupt before he would pay the extra nickel. Thomas Murphy, A. M. Burns, and Mr. Fleming, protested against the extra fare. Deputy Sheriff Clark objected to the slowness of the line, stating that he had to go half an hour ahead of time to catch a train for Boston.

Mr. Caldwell kicked on the uncleanness of the little waiting station at the end of the line.

A Banana Line
Charles Stokney characterized the line as a "banana line" running in bunches. He also suggested that the Church street line be extended to the Andover street line.

Board of Trade
Secretary John H. Murphy of the board of trade stated that many complaints had been registered with him and with the members of the executive committee about the poor service on the line and also about the transfer limit.

George Lynch Protests
Mr. George Lynch, a well known resident of Tewksbury, protested against the transfer limit and said the condition of the cars is such that they would not be tolerated on any other line. It takes seven minutes to make the run from the square to the terminus of the line, the shortest run in the city. The fare money is asked for from those who hold transfers and is collected only a very short time before the terminus is reached. The run is so short that the car is held up at the terminus several minutes in order to maintain schedule time into the square.

Would Build Up
John Robertson said that if better car service were maintained and if better cars were put in commission, North Tewksbury would very soon build up. It is in the interest of the Bay State Street Railway Co. to make traveling on the line more attractive.

The Company's Side
Fred N. Wier, representing the Bay State Street railway, said that the company always welcomed such discussions, because it is a public service corporation and therefore desired to know what the public wanted. The matter would more properly be referred to the selection of Tewksbury, he said, inasmuch as the transfer from the city end of the line carries the passenger 150 feet over the line into the town of Tewksbury. As to the irregularity with which the cars have been run, he understood that the schedule time is generally well maintained. What break in the service there is, he believed, to the interruptions caused by the paving in East Merrimack street. Mr. Wier said the company would look into the matter and see what could be done to remedy the defects, if possible.

Mr. Wier suggested that the board had no power except to recommend. Chairman Gallagher read the law governing the operation of street rail-

GOVERNOR FOSS

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Governor Foss, David I. Walsh, candidate for lieutenant governor, and other members of the democratic state ticket, carried their campaign into the western part of the commonwealth today. They will speak tonight in Warren, Palmer, Monson and Ludlow. Other western towns will be visited tomorrow by automobile. The candidates said that this trip is an unofficial one and that the official democratic campaign will begin next Saturday night in Boston with a rally in Tremont temple.

CITY CHARTER

A STRAW VOTE TAKEN AMONG FRENCH VOTERS

One of the employees at city hall went around taking straw votes on the proposed charter question today, and the result of his trouble in very satisfactory. This man worked among the French speaking people and after he had consulted 15 voters, he reported as follows: 19 in favor of the movement, 18 against, 5 neutral and 3 who would not declare themselves.

This was done for the purpose of ascertaining if possible how the French speaking voters stood on the question, for according to some people, these voters were all in favor of the new charter, while on the other side, some claim that they were opposed to the new form of government.

However the straw vote as taken shows that over 50 per cent are in favor of the project, for those who refused to declare themselves, will undoubtedly vote in favor on election day, as they are almost convinced that the new form of government is badly needed in Lowell, and that there is more for them to gain than to lose by adopting the new charter.

AMERICAN PRISON CONGRESS

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 18.—At the third day's session today of the American Prison Congress, L. A. Halbert of Kansas City, one of the speakers, expressed his belief in farm work for prisoners who are guilty of misdemeanors.

A paper by James Kayll of Wellington, N. Z., was read, Mr. Kayll being unable to be present.

COUNCIL J. N. JACQUES

Council J. N. Jacques, U. S. St. J. Blo d'Amerique, held an important meeting last night in the rooms of the Centralville Social club in Lakeview avenue. Two new members were initiated and seven applications were received. President Albert Marquette occupied the chair and a great of business was transacted. Adolph Bouchard was chosen delegate to represent the council at the coming convention of the union to be held at Providence, R. I. on Dec. 12.

BEATEN BY A MOB

in New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Harry Gray, a disreputable negro, member of the vaudeville team of Gray and Smith, started one of the most alarming race riots in Harlem last night that section has seen for a long time. The outcome was that Gray was terribly beaten by a mob, and, surrounded by police, he was escorted to the station house in a junk wagon which the police pressed into service.

Charles H. Kromer of 239 West 142d street, and Fred Miller of 229 West 141st street, were coming down Eighth avenue about 3.30 o'clock. At 142d street Kromer started to enter a store to use a telephone. Kromer is six feet tall. He ran into Gray, who is about five feet.

Gray abused Kromer and attacked him. He sent the big man reeling with the suddenness of his onslaught. When Kromer recovered, he started after Gray. The latter turned and fired at him. The bullet went through one of Kromer's trousers legs and he tripped and went down.

A crowd that had been attracted joined in the chase, shouting that Gray had killed a white man. Gray, with the crowd in pursuit, ran to 141st street and turned east. Kromer, who it was supposed had been killed, had joined in the chase.

In the middle of the block Gray turned and fired at Kromer and the others in pursuit.

Policeman Joseph Goldstein was sitting in a barber's chair in a shop at 267 West 142d street. Patrolman Higgins had been shaved and was waiting for Goldstein.

Both jumped for the street. Goldstein with the father on his face. Gray had fired again and the policeman took a couple of shots at him.

At Seventh avenue they overhauled

him, and he tried to use his revolver on Goldstein. He was overpowered, but the crowd became so menacing the police could do nothing.

A dozen men hit Gray and struck the police, trying to tear the negro from them. Telephone calls were sent to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and the One Hundred and Fifty-second street police stations for patrol wagons. In both stations the wagons were out.

At this juncture several automobilists were appealed to by the police to hurry and get policemen. The two officers backed Gray against the wall of the Church of St. Charles of Borromeo, while autos carried up and down Seventh avenue. The automobiles soon brought a dozen policemen.

The crowd by this time had grown to such proportions that the streets were impassable. A junk wagon was commandeered and the prisoner, cut and bleeding, was placed in it. Guarded by police and followed by a mob shouting, "Kill him! Kill him!" the wagon was driven to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station.

All Gray had to say was: "They tried to do me." He was locked up on charges of felonious assault and carrying concealed weapons.

Gray and Smith have been in vaudeville for several years. They have played in this country and in the music halls of England.

desertion and demanding the absolute custody of the only child was filed yesterday in this city by De Forest's attorney.

It is alleged in the complaint that Mrs. De Forest deserted her husband more than a year ago and has ever since refused to return to him. This document is devoted to explaining to the court reasons why the little girl should be given to the father in case the divorce should be granted.

Mrs. De Forest is declared to be unfit to bring up the child. The mother, according to the complaint, "devotes her time exclusively to the practice of her profession of civil engineering and to militantly advocating the cause of woman's suffrage."

The little daughter, whose first utterances were "Votes for women" and "Hurray for suffrage," is declared to be neglected by its mother. On Sundays, the inventor explains in his suit, Mrs. De Forest, instead of staying home and attending to her child, spends the day visiting suffragette meetings in New York and surrounding cities.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

Last night one of the most artistic dramatic attractions that has been seen at the Opera House for more than a year was "The Spendthrift," a play in four acts. The play illustrates life in New York in the fashionable section where all kinds of extravagance are indulged in by people who are amply able to afford every kind of luxury as well as many not so wealthy. The principal character, Richard Ward, a gentleman of large earning capacity, was married to one of the most beautiful women in New York, both in face and figure, and he certainly adored her. It must have been wholly for her charming appearance that she certainly had no other real qualifications, as she had not the slightest conception of what the duties of a wife should be, for judging from her extravagant habits her chief enjoyment was in contracting large bills. No idea of self denial ever entered her mind. There were characters portraying also the power of money, and its value when used in moderation. One such role was portrayed by an aunt of the spendthrift, Gretchen Jans, who was a very prudent woman, and this old lady would remind one of the character of Betty Green, and the advice she gave to this extravagant wife, her niece, was certainly something that would set anyone thinking. The inevitable had to come and there was a job for the sheriff. The wife, after being informed that the household goods were no longer her property, could not understand how such a thing could be possible, when she had already arranged for a swell party to take place that evening, but in her desperation she went out and from some friend unknown to her husband had borrowed the $20,000 that it would take to put off the disaster. She returned with the money, greatly to her surprise, representing that the frugal old aunt had loaned the money. The husband, knowing of her very careful habits of loaning money to anybody, at once suspected, and it happened that by chance or accident the aunt called at his home and Richard thanked her for her generous loan which lifted him out of his terrible dilemma. She could not understand what he meant, but said that she had not loaned any money. The husband then knowing that it came from some other source forced his wife to tell. She had to admit that the money was loaned her by a young millionaire of questionable reputation, which aroused the husband's rage to think she had thus bartered her honor to a man of wealth. The strongest kind of a climax was here presented. The final scene showed a separation. The wife had gone out into the world and for five months lived in almost abject poverty, doing nurse work or anything she might find, shifting from her place to quarters in a garret in a poor section of the city. This is but a brief outline of the plot and the lesson that it teaches, and was listened to most attentively, and at the end of each act certain calls were insisted upon, and were well deserved.

It does seem strange that when such a star attraction comes here that the Opera House should not be packed. The play last evening certainly deserved a full house, whereas there were many vacant seats.

The play will be repeated this evening. It is one of the strongest seen in the city for a considerable time, and the company is first class in every particular.

The cast is as follows:
Richard Ward.....Lionel Adams
Philip Cartwright.....Edwin Holland
Ment Ward, Richard's father.....Suniter Gard

Clarice Van Zandt, her sister.....Alice Kelly
Gretchen Jans, their aunt.....Mattie Ferguson

Suffern Thorn.....Guy D'Egnery

"THE BEAUTY SPOT"
The musical play by De Koven and Herbert entitled "The Beauty Spot," which comes to the Opera House, Oct. 24th, is said to be a production above the average, its music being of a higher order.

The cast is headed by that sterling actor and comedian, Frank Deshon, whose strength lies not altogether in the material furnished him by the authors but what he injects into the piece from his own personality. His role of the giddy old Russian general is characteristic, his makeup being highly ludicrous and mirth provoking.

Mr. Deshon is ably supported by a company of well known people. Two scenes are said to be handsome, unique in idea and beautiful to the eye.

"THE GAMBLERS"
Preparations are being made for the local appearance of "The Gamblers," which is to be seen here at the Opera House immediately following the Boston engagement of this company. Already the local management has received many applications for seat reservations and indications point to a record breaking attendance here for this attraction.

GERTRUDE RENNISON COMING
Friends of the distinguished American soprano will be pleased to learn that arrangements have been completed for the appearance here at the Opera House of this talented singer. Miss Rennison will appear here on Friday, Nov. 17th.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

The old time minstrels have got the town, likewise a few of our present time who are with the bunch. "Where have I seen that face before?" and "Where have I heard that voice before?" have frequently been asked after Peter J. McLaughlin has rendered his songs in the minstrel first part. Next even on a balmy day at Spaulding park seen a fantastic figure arrayed in a mask and protector face the hooting mob and high above the roar of battle cry out: "The lot-for-a-s for today n-r-e?" Why, sure enough, that's Peter McLaughlin, the ex-New England league umpire and he has it on the crowd at Keith's this week for they can't call him a robber without getting put out and they wouldn't anyway for he is making a hit with his sweet voice. The minstrel bill includes a whole galaxy of stars, Hugbie Dougherty, Lew Benedit, Tom Clifford, who was critical Boston's favorite baritone for over a score of years; Dan Haley, Bob Evans, Billy Elliott, Thomas J. Quinn and others in a first part and afterpiece. The olio includes four fine vaudeville acts including Isabel L'Armand, a reigning Boston favorite with Frank Carter in a musical act including eccentric dancing entitled "Jolly Junk," Sully and Muzzy, a couple of "Che, Ohe" boys, have a most laughable time with the audience, while the Mozarts offer a unique and most interesting act in a scene laid in the frozen north. The pictures are up to the minute showing scenes at the opening game of the world's series. Mme. Sullivan, direct from the Imperial Tokio theatre with her gipsy suite, will head next week's bill. Seats for coming performances may be ordered in advance by telephone 28.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Several men, well known in labor circles, were in the audience at the Hathaway theatre last evening at the performance of David Belasco's great drama of capital and labor, and they were most enthusiastic over what they saw and heard. To place such a play before the public in the form of a play and make it entertaining without offending either side of the great social problem requires most careful study and discrimination, together with a strict adherence to facts in describing conditions. Belasco has done all this to perfection in "The Lost Paradise," and his play leaves all feeling better for having witnessed a performance. The play is being excellently presented by the Donald Meek stock company. The part most likely to be overdone or cause adverse criticism, that of Schwartz, the fiery workman who promotes the strike, has been taken by Mr. Meek himself, and while his time on the stage is short he has much to say in that short time and he does the character in faultless manner. Those who expected to find Mr. Meek in a comedy role experienced a surprise akin to a positive shock upon hearing him as the wrathful Schwartz, but whatever the nature of the part Mr. Meek may be depended upon to do it justice. Mr. Jack Chingun gives a fine interpretation of Reuben Warner, the factory foreman, while Miss Marie Horton is charming in the role of the factory owner's daughter, Miss Marcel Williams as Nell, the lame factory girl, secretly in love with Warner, interprets an important emotional role in a most artistic manner. Seats may be ordered in advance by telephone for the remaining performances. Next week the Donald Meek stock company will present "The County Chairman."

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

If it's variety you're after, you'll find it at the Merrimack Square theatre. If it's high class entertainment you like, it's at the Merrimack Square theatre. If it's all that's best in vaudeville and photo-plays your wants will be satisfied at the Merrimack Square theatre. Heading the list of novel amusement this week is Captain Pickard's troupe of trained sea lions. There are five animals in the troupe and the various feats which they perform are especially entertaining.

Kendall Weston, Miss Constance Jackson, Stanley Wood and John J. Quinn, members of Our Stock Company, are meeting with unqualified success this week in the presentation of that popular dramatic offering, "My Emperor." Mr. Quinn, a Lowell boy, portrays the character of the great Napoleon in a very clever style. The staging of the piece is excellently done. Hammond and Forrester, and Freeman and Carr contribute their share to the week's bill. Miss Beatrice Savill gives a delightful talk on "Jamaica," and during the last three days of the week her subject will be "Canada." On Friday night the Merrimack Square Theatre Concert orchestra will feature selections from the favorite opera "Faust."

SHOT BY A FRIEND

Manchester Man Victim of an Accident

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 18.—Michael Cody, stump clerk in the post office, was accidentally shot yesterday while hunting deer in Shelburne, about seven miles from Berlin. This state-dying of his injuries a few hours later.

Mr. Cody, who left Manchester Saturday on his annual vacation which he had intended to pass in the north woods, started out early yesterday morning with a companion by the name of E. H. Tirrell, also of this city, along an old trail, and in attempting to cross a ravine on the remains of an old bridge he with his companion were by the giving way of a rotten timber, thrown to the bottom of the ravine.

In falling, Tirrell's rifle was accidentally discharged and the ball, after grazing his abdomen and inflicting a painful wound, pierced Cody's leg. Mr. Tirrell, after binding up the wound as well as he was able, went back out of the woods for help.

On returning with a number of lumbermen Mr. Cody refused to be moved until the arrival of a physician. Upon his arrival he was carried out of the woods, but died from the shock and loss of blood shortly after.

Mr. Cody, aged 33, was a native of Manchester, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Cody. He received his education in the high school. He was appointed a subclerk in the post office July 15, 1898, and was promoted to a regular clerkship Jan. 1, 1899.

He was considered by Postmaster Chamberlain one of the most efficient men under him and was a universal favorite not only with his fellow employees in the office but among a host of friends throughout the city.

MOTION IS FILED

To Set Aside Ruling on Chandler Deposition

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 18.—In accordance with the agreement made between counsel in the Eddy will case at the time of the adjournment of the taking of the deposition of William E. Chandler for use in the case, Streeter, Demond & Woodworth, counsel for the defense, yesterday filed in the superior court a petition which if sustained will set aside the ruling made by Magistrate Thomas Clifford in the case upholding Mr. Chandler in his refusal to answer questions asked by Mr. Streeter in his cross examination.

"The petition prays that the court summon Magistrate Clifford, requiring him to produce a copy of the Chandler deposition and show cause, if he has any, why his rulings sustaining Mr. Chandler's refusal to answer certain questions should not be set aside. A writ of mandamus is also asked for compelling Magistrate Clifford to reconsider his alleged erroneous rulings and in their stead make rules requiring an answer from Mr. Chandler to the questions he has refused to answer."

The questions which Mr. Chandler has refused to answer in the course of his deposition deal mainly with a mysterious friend of Mrs. Augusta Stetson, concerning whom he refused to give any information, also the relations of Henry Robinson of this city to the present case and "the next friend" suit, the amount of money paid Mr. Robinson collector of Concord, N. H., literature, and whether or not George W. Glover, the present plaintiff in the will contest, has promised to repay Mr.

Many Are Debilitated

UNNATURAL LIVING THE CAUSE OF PLAGUE

"The artificial environment of the city is killing us," said an eminent physician, in an address to the Southern Indiana Teachers' Association, on the new hygienic, at Indianapolis Friday night. "There is no doubt about it," continued the physician. "The world is slowly going mad. If the denizens of the earth do not reverse utterly their mode of living within 250 years, we will all be lunatics."

Before he finished, many of the teachers, particularly women, left the hall too nervous to hear the final shafts of his arraignment of life as it is lived in the twentieth century.

"The physician is undoubtedly correct," said one of the specialists who is introducing "Tona Vita," the remarkable new tonic, recently. "The strain and excitement of metropolitan life is entirely too much for the constitution of the average person," continued the specialist, "and a most distressing condition in all large cities like Lowell results. The unnatural methods of living, which produce this artificial environment, dispossess the organic body of its characteristic properties, completely undermines the health and are directly responsible for that modern malady which is known to us as nervous debility."

"Comparatively few realize what a tremendous number of people among those who live in the larger cities like Lowell are afflicted with nervous debility in a more or less aggravated form. Nor does the public realize the symptoms of this disease when they see them. Most of the so-called kidney trouble, nearly all indigestion and fully half of the headaches in Lowell can be attributed solely to nervous debility."

"We are introducing for the first time in this country a preparation that will positively remove this condition. 'Tona Vita' will repair all organic weaknesses, whether man or woman, and build up and restore the body to a healthy, normal condition within an astonishingly short space of time. The value of 'Tona Vita' is being satisfactorily demonstrated in all of the big cities of the country today. There is no better evidence of merit than that which is shown by the testimony of those who have actually tested a medicine, and we are receiving just such evidence from scores of people who have found 'Tona Vita' as represented."

The specialists will meet all callers between the hours of 9 a. m. and 8 p. m. at Hall & Lyon's drug store, and explain the nature of their new preparation.

Chandler money advanced in the carrying on of the suit.

Mr. Chandler's reason for refusing to answer the questions was that it would disclose the manner in which, and the witnesses by whom he intends to prove his case, and that the information required by the questions was of privileged character. The defense holds that the questions are proper and not included in the class of privileged communication.

No date has been set as yet for the hearing.

HORSE WAS SHOT

Animal Fell Into a Ditch
in Broadway

A rather strange accident in which a valuable horse lost his life occurred in Broadway last night, when the horse of John Lynch of Chelmsford fell into a gutter and could not be extricated alive.

The water department recently dug a ditch at the corner of Broadway and Claret street, the said ditch being 20 inches wide, 60 inches long and six feet deep. Last night the horse was trotting up Broadway when it stumbled over a pile of dirt in the roadway and fell into the ditch, its forelegs deep into the hole and the rest of its body on the street. Efforts were made to extricate the horse from the dangerous position.

The water department was notified and men with jacks spent several hours trying to raise the animal. During all this time the horse in its struggle wedged itself firmer into the narrow opening. Finally Agent Richardson of the Humane society was called and he put an end to the horse's sufferings by sending a bullet into its head.

KILLED BY PLAYMATE

Saco Boy Victim of an Accident

SACO, Me., Oct. 18.—Alton S. Scamman, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Scamman of the Buxton road, was instantly killed late yesterday afternoon by the accidental discharge of a shotgun in the hands of Edwin A. Leavitt, aged 15, son of Edwin A. Leavitt, of Gloucester, Mass., a Thornton student, living at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Grant on the Buxton road since last June.

Coroner Fred C. Bradbury, after making an investigation, decided not to hold an inquest. As he was convinced the shooting was accidental, Young Leavitt is heartbroken by the fatality.

Yesterday afternoon Leavitt went to the Scamman farm to play with the boys. About 5.30, while he was sitting in a farm wagon, he picked up the shotgun on the bottom of the wagon. Instantly there was an explosion, and little Alton Scamman, who was standing in the barn door, fell dead. The shot had pierced his heart.

Two doctors were summoned from this city, but there was nothing to do when they arrived. Leavitt said last night that he could not explain how the shooting occurred. It was his own gun.

CHINESE TROOPS

Said to Have Been Beaten in a Fight With the Revolutionists

HANKOW, Oct. 18.—The battle between the imperial troops and the rebels was indecisive, the advantage, if any, appearing to be with the rebels.

THE FIRST BATTLE

STORY OF CLASH ON THE NORTH BANK OF HAN RIVER

HANKOW, Oct. 18.—The first battle since the arrival of the imperial troops from the north was fought today on the north bank of the Han river just west of this city.

It was indecisive. The revolutionists temporarily drove the imperial troops back from their position, but in doing so they exhausted their rifle ammunition and were compelled to retire to their base at Wu Chang.

The revolutionists were reinforced from the Chinese warships in the river and supported by the guns of the fleet.

While the fighting was in progress the 13 foreign vessels in the river landed a joint force under command of Vice Admiral Sir Alfred L. Winslow, commander of the British eastern fleet, who, because of his seniority, has been given the direction of the men engaged in the protection of the foreign concessions.

The Red Cross neutral camp, in charge of Dr. MacVillie of the American mission, received and cared for the rebel wounded.

About 2000 revolutionists were pitted against an equal number of loyal soldiers and it was a fair fight. Early reports that the rebels outnumbered the enemy 5 to 1 were incorrect. Only a part of the revolutionists army participated. At daybreak the revolutionaries fell upon the imperial camp. The government troops responded loyally. The fighting was severe but it is impossible to describe the casualties as the correspondents were not permitted to be near the firing line and those who witnessed the battle from the river were fired upon. At the first sound of firing Admiral Sah Chon Ping, in command of the Chinese warships, ordered men landed to support Gen. Chang Piao, formerly commander of the troops of the Wu Chang district, who had assumed command of the imperial troops. The rebels directed a hot fire on the warships and the landing parties from their artillery and field guns which had been stationed on the Wu Chang bank of the river. Admiral Sah ordered the warships to fire on the rebel field pieces and for a time shells fell thick among the rebel gunners. The warships, however, were seriously handicapped by the danger to the foreign concessions involved in a fire from the fleet. Two foreign newspaper correspondents narrowly escaped with their lives. They had been cruising on the river in expectation of the battle and their launch had reached a point opposite the imperial camp when the hostilities began. Presently they found their little craft alongside Admiral Sah's flagship and between the fire of the two forces. From that spot the correspondents witnessed the fighting until Admiral Sah ordered them out of the firing line. The launch and its crew withdrew and as they did so they were fired upon by men who had been landed from the warships. Fortunately the correspondents escaped unharmed.

The engagement continued for several hours when the combined land and ship forces of the imperials were driven some distance back, and the rebels, retreating, recrossed the river to Wu Chang.

Some of the rebels applied at the foreign concessions to learn whether they would be protected if they entered the concessions. The foreign powers are, however, concerned with the protection of foreign interests only and their quarters in Hankow have been made ready for any emergency. No trouble at present is anticipated. The reinforcements from the north are expected tonight. The shells from the fleet were comparatively few and did not do great damage. The imperial forces concentrated north of the city when the fighting ceased. The general situation has not been greatly changed by the battle and continues grave.

GREAT BRITAIN

TO ASSUME ATTITUDE OF ABSOLUTE NEUTRALITY

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The British government has decided on an attitude of absolute neutrality in China and will strictly limit action by Great Britain to measures necessary for the protection of the lives and property of citizens. It was announced at the foreign office today that instructions in this sense had been sent to Vice Admiral Winslow, who was given full power to land bluejackets and otherwise provide for the safety of Britishers.

We offer subject to sale 5000 SHARES ROCKINGHAM PARK SALEM, N. H. New England Aviation Company CAPITAL $1,000,000 PAR VALUE $100 PER SHARE FEDERAL TRUST CO., Transfer Agents LIBERTY TRUST CO., Registrars

This company controls and operates Rockingham Park, established in Salem, N. H., in 1906 by the late John W. Gates. The property, which cost $1,000,000, completed, saw less than a week of activity because of restrictions as to pool selling imposed by the New Hampshire legislature.

This park contains 400 acres, adjoins the Boston & Maine R. R. station at Salem, just across the Massachusetts line, is 34 miles from Boston, 4 miles from Lawrence, 10 miles from Lowell, Haverhill, Nashua and Portsmouth and 20 miles from Manchester. Two enormous steel grandstands, unequaled anywhere in New England, have a seating capacity of 15,000 people. Two beautiful and modern clubhouses. 25 large stables with all the accessories.

No aerodrome in the country can begin to compare in its facilities or accessibility or convenience with Rockingham Park.

EARNINGS OF THE PROPERTY

To recapitulate, we have in one piece of property the equipment necessary for model institutions as follows: A Country Club; a New England Horse Show and Fair; an International Aviation Meet; a Horse Racing Meet; an Automobile Racing Meet; Baseball and Football Games and other Athletic and Winter Sports.

We do not wish to be extravagant in our ideas as to the earnings of this property but when we consider what the Rochester fair has paid in the way of dividends, that property starting with a capital of $70, what the Brockton fair has done for its stockholders, and what other smaller fairs have earned, we believe that our enormous property, with its many interests, can assuredly return a very handsome dividend to the stockholders. The Park was opened for the first time under the present management Columbus Day, October 12, 1911, for an aviation meet. Owing to the uncertainty of getting the aviators no announcements of the meet were made until Saturday, October 7, and with only four days' notice over 30,000 people attended, coming from Boston and surrounding cities.

Detailed information regarding the New England Aviation Company photographs of the chief points of interest and permits to visit the great park may be obtained from

PRES. TAFT'S TRIP

Will Not be Ended Until November 15

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Oct. 18.—President Taft's notable "sawing around the circle" now ending its fifth week, will not end in Washington on Nov. 1st as first contemplated, but will be extended until Nov. 15 or 18. The president will travel some 3000 or 4000 miles more than he first intended, bringing the total mileage of his tour up to between 16,000 and 17,000 miles and breaking all known records of presidential travel.

The regular itinerary of the original trip will be followed to Pittsburgh, where President Taft will spend Tuesday, Oct. 31. Then instead of keeping on to Washington Mr. Taft will go direct to Morgantown, W. Va., to spend Nov. 1. From there he will go to Hot Springs, Va., to rest for five days, starting west in time to vote at Cincinnati at the local elections to be held there Nov. 7. The president will remain in his old home for a day or two and will be tendered a banquet.

Following Cincinnati, Mr. Taft probably will go to Hendersonville, Ky., to participate in the dedication of the Lincoln farm memorial. There are two or three tentative dates in Tennessee following this and then it is expected Mr. Taft will return to Washington in time to prepare his message to congress, which meets the first Monday in December. The dates of the supplemental trip have not been fixed upon as yet, but probably will be announced within the next few days. According to President Taft's plans he will discard his special train either at Chicago or Pittsburgh and will make the supplemental tour in his private car attached to regular trains.

With the present trip ended and with congress, the national conventions and a presidential campaign coming within the next few months Mr. Taft's travels will be over for some time to come. So he has decided to clear up all of his tentative engagements at one time if he could and face the coming session with a clean slate.

There have been several delays and efforts are being made today to catch up with the schedule before reaching Salt Lake.

Gov. Shoy and Sen. Smoot of Utah and Colonel Jackling of Salt Lake will accompany the president through Utah today. Special stops have been scheduled at Ogden, Logan and one or two other points.

STOCK MARKET

THE BULLS DID NOT FIND MUCH ENCOURAGEMENT

Special Weakness in Some of the Higher Class Railroad Stocks—The Price of U. S. Steel Fell to 38—Market Weak At the Close

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Irregular changes occurred at the opening of the stock market today. Movement of active stocks for the most part was downward. U. S. Steel moved upward but soon fell off 5/8. Western Maryland lost a point and Kansas City Southern 1/2. Anaconda advanced a point.

After developing a generally heavy tone and establishing losses of half in U. S. Steel and Reading and 3/4 in United States Steel, the market rallied briskly. U. S. Steel returned to near yesterday's closing level and Reading and U. P. fractionally above. Lehigh Valley was also marked up a point above last night. Continued selling of American Tobacco bonds which went down 5/8 for the 4's and 1 1/4 for the 6's discouraged short selling by the professionals. Heavy liquidation of American Cotton Oil depressed it 2 1/4 on reports that the dividend on the common stock was not being earned.

The tone of the market was irregular and uncertain throughout the morning. Some of the Industrials showed firmness but the railroad list as a whole was unsatisfactory except for the C. & P. Pressure against U. S. Steel was conspicuous and there was further liquidation of speculative holdings of American Tobacco securities.

Standard stocks manifested weakness again late in the day. The advances in Reading and Lehigh Valley were cancelled and there was a sudden break to 5 1/2 of United States which placed it 1 1/2 below yesterday's closing. Union Pacific also sold a large fraction below yesterday's final figure and trading operations were resumed on the short side. Great Northern Ore certificates lost 3 points. There were rumors that the United States Steel corporation would abrogate its contract with the company to mine the ore on the property.

An analysis of the trade reviews did not encourage the bulls on United States Steel and close observers maintained that considerable long stock was coming on the market when the price fell to 38. Special weakness also developed in some of the higher class railroad stocks. The market closed weak.

Steel returned to near yesterday's closing level and Reading and U. P. fractionally above. Lehigh Valley was also marked up a point above last night. Continued selling of American Tobacco bonds which went down 5/8 for the 4's and 1 1/4 for the 6's discouraged short selling by the professionals. Heavy liquidation of American Cotton Oil depressed it 2 1/4 on reports that the dividend on the common stock was not being earned.

The tone of the market was irregular and uncertain throughout the morning. Some of the Industrials showed firmness but the railroad list as a whole was unsatisfactory except for the C. & P. Pressure against U. S. Steel was conspicuous and there was further liquidation of speculative holdings of American Tobacco securities.

Standard stocks manifested weakness again late in the day. The advances in Reading and Lehigh Valley were cancelled and there was a sudden break to 5 1/2 of United States which placed it 1 1/2 below yesterday's closing. Union Pacific also sold a large fraction below yesterday's final figure and trading operations were resumed on the short side. Great Northern Ore certificates lost 3 points. There were rumors that the United States Steel corporation would abrogate its contract with the company to mine the ore on the property.

An analysis of the trade reviews did not encourage the bulls on United States Steel and close observers maintained that considerable long stock was coming on the market when the price fell to 38. Special weakness also developed in some of the higher class railroad stocks. The market closed weak.

STOCK MARKET

Special Weakness in Some of the Higher Class Railroad Stocks—The Price of U. S. Steel Fell to 38—Market Weak At the Close

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Irregular changes occurred at the opening of the stock market today. Movement of active stocks for the most part was downward. U. S. Steel moved upward but soon fell off 5/8. Western Maryland lost a point and Kansas City Southern 1/2. Anaconda advanced a point.

After developing a generally heavy tone and establishing losses of half in U. S. Steel and Reading and 3/4 in United States Steel, the market rallied briskly. U. S. Steel returned to near yesterday's closing level and Reading and U. P. fractionally above. Lehigh Valley was also marked up a point above last night. HERE IT IS, LOOK HARD—BANG! BEN'S BUMPED!!

NELSON LOST AGAIN

Pal Moore Was Too Much for the Old Battler

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Pal Moore, the Philadelphia lightweight, in winning the decision over Battling Nelson in their 12-round bout at the Armory A. A. last night, gave the old Battler a far worse whaling than Young Saylor gave him here a few weeks ago.

Those who had any idea that the Battler would come back after last night's bout, that there is no change for him. Though Moore had the Battler wobbly several times, he did not succeed in getting Nelson off his feet or keep him from boxing in all the time.

That the Battler was not defeated decisively was a surprise to the spectators. He took enough punishment to stop almost any one, but displayed his oldtime doggedness and kept going after Moore all the time. Only in two rounds did Nelson have the honors, and in those rounds Moore was laying up so as not to tire himself out hitting Nelson.

The Quaker City boy also took many blows that he could easily have blocked or avoided, but as there was no great amount of steam behind them Moore was not in the least affected by them. The Battler has lost his judgment on distance, and he cannot counter the way he did when he was the premier in that class. Many times Moore made him miss without exerting himself to any extent. Nelson resorted to his old style of working till he got to close quarters, and at that style of milling he found his match in Moore.

Bat's Punches Didn't Hurt

Moore blocked many of the Battler's short rights and lefts for the body, but Nelson in about every round did land some of the punches on the ribs, stomach and kidneys. But the ones that Moore gave in return on the same spots had more power behind them.

A number of times Nelson backed Moore into corners and tried hard to get in some telling blows. Twice Nelson nearly pushed Moore out of the ring. In every round Moore hooked and jabbed the left into Nelson's face and onto the jaw, and crossed the right to the jaw so fast and often that it was impossible to keep count of the blows.

Occasionally Moore showed some of his footwork and he had Nelson puzzled. Invariably, when he would slip away from Nelson's rushes, he would come back with a left hook or right to the jaw before Nelson knew exactly where Moore was.

In many of the rounds Moore showed Nelson that he was handy also at the wrestling style. He would get Nelson around the neck with the left, and while pulling him about the ring would keep upcutting him with the right. In coming out of clinches Moore also displayed cleverness, for he would catch Nelson on the chin and face with stiff right uppercuts.

In several of the rounds Moore handed Nelson lefts and rights on the jaw so fast that it looked as if another K. O. would be registered against the Battler, but he weathered the storm of blows till the bell sounded.

He came out from his corner at the opening of every round with the same gait and confidence, and Moore would start to play with him as a cat would with a mouse. When he wanted to hit Nelson he had no trouble doing so with either hand, and when he wanted to rest he did so without getting any blows that affected him.

In one of the rounds Nelson was a bit bewildered, for he let Moore get away with a stunt without making any effort to reach him with a punch. When near Nelson's corner Moore slipped, but did not go to the floor. He reached Nelson away a few feet and then walked to Nelson's corner and resined his shoes. Nelson merely stood and watched him. When Moore had got enough of the rest on his shoes he walked back toward Nelson and jabbed him in the nose.

Moore evidently knew the right way to box the Battler and he carried out his plans well. When the bell sounded at the end of the 12 rounds the spectators were glad, for they did not care to see a game boxer like Nelson get any more whaling.

After Referee Flaherty gave the decision to Moore the Battler made a short speech, saying that he thought he earned a draw, but had no fault to find with the decision.

Joe Walcott Does Better

Joe Walcott, the other ex-world's champion, had more success in his bout, and he showed that although classed as a "has-been," there are some of the tall heavies whom he can still topple over as in the days of old. Bob Lee, another colored boxer, was his opponent, and he stood head and shoulders over Walcott.

While Lee has learned some boxing since he was last seen here, he still knows when to stop when he has enough. He caught Joe on the face with a few lefts, but when Walcott began sending his left to the stomach and the right to the ribs, Lee would get into a clinch as quick as possible. It was amusing to see him hanging on.

In the second round Walcott took more chances with his bad hands, and twice he swung the left over onto Lee's jaw and made him wobble a bit, as many a boxer has before from the same punch.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Officially

the attendance at the first game for the world's championship here was 26,286, but thousands of other spectators saw the game without adding anything to the club's coffers. Back of the center field is a row of houses from which the grand stands over the stoops and on the roofs and sold seats at from $2 to $4. Hundreds who had paid $1 each to stand behind the fence erected just inside the wall that bounded the diamond climbed to the top of the wall and sat there with their legs dangling down. They could see no better than those who crowded the roofs of the houses just behind them. The picture shows Third Baseman Baker of the Athletics catching a fly knocked by Fletcher in the seventh inning.

C. M. A. C. MEETING

A well attended meeting of the C. M. A. C. was held last night in their hall in Pawtucket street, President Xavier Delisle occupying the chair. Considerable business was transacted, and the committee in charge of the coming pilgrimage to be held at St. Joseph's cemetery, reported that arrangements for this solemn ceremony were almost completed.

Another vital point of interest at last night's meeting was the initiation contest which was opened for the two coming months, prizes are offered to the members who will bring in a certain number of applications, and in order to help those entering the contest, the initiation fee of $2 was suspended for the coming two months.

The Garde d'Honneur which is a branch of this organization is preparing a whistle and concert to be held at the C. M. A. C. hall on Oct. 31, and an elaborate entertainment program is being prepared for the occasion.

TWO WOMEN KILLED

Auto Crashed Into a Telegraph Pole

WAREHOUSE POINT, Conn., Oct. 18.—In an automobile accident here late yesterday, Mrs. Rose Richards of Haverburg, Can., and Mrs. Julian Richards of North Adams, Mass., were instantly killed, and Mrs. Theophile S. Mailloux of 330 Summer avenue, Springfield, Mass., was injured, but not fatally.

The automobile in which they were riding was owned and run by Mr. Mailloux, husband of Mrs. Mailloux. The party were on their way to Springfield from Hartford and had just descended a steep hill when a rear tire burst, causing the machine to skid sharply so that before Mr. Mailloux could get it under control it crashed into a telegraph pole.

The three women and Mr. Mailloux were pinned under the car and their screams attracted attention. As soon as help reached the spot the car was lifted so that the four were taken out and carried to nearby houses where they were attended by physicians.

Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Julia Richards were injured internally and died soon after being rescued. Mrs. Mailloux is injured internally and it is thought that she will not live. Mr. Mailloux, other than for a shaking up, escaped without injury.

Mrs. Rose Richards was 49 years old, and leaves a husband and six children. Mrs. Julia Richards was 75 years old. The party left Springfield for Hartford, Conn., yesterday morning and were returning here when the accident occurred. Theophile S. Mailloux, owner and driver of the machine, is a local contractor, living at 330 Summer avenue. Mrs. Rose Richards of Haverburg, Can., and Mrs. Julian Richards of North Adams, Mass., the two women who were killed, were aunts of Mrs. Mailloux.

At the Mailloux home it was said last night that Mrs. Mailloux's injuries were not expected to be serious. Her husband was fortunate in escaping with minor hurts. She is 42 years old.

WOMEN AT NEWPORT DISCARD FACE POWDER

"During my summer's stay at Newport," writes Mae Martyn, "I was greatly interested in the unusually charming complexion of the women. I soon found that these fortunate possessed of perfect complexions no longer use powder, since it clogs up the skin pores and causes blackheads, wrinkles, etc. Instead they use a lotion, made by dissolving 4 ounces of spermacin in either ½ pint hot water or ½ pint witch hazel, adding 2 tea-spoons glycerine. Where witch hazel is used the lotion dries more quickly. This splendid lotion clears and whitens the skin, making it smooth, soft and velvet. It removes that shiny, yellow look and does not show or rub off like powder. It is far superior to face powder, and a permanent skin beautifier."

FIFTEEN ARE INJURED

Trolley Car Crashed Into a Steam Roller

WORCESTER, Oct. 18.—A big steam roller of the Worcester street department stalled half way across the tracks of the Clinton line of the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway company at the foot of a hill on Lincoln street, near the Home farm, and a slippery rail formed a combination yesterday that wrecked one of the trolley cars of the Consolidated and caused minor injuries to 15 passengers who were on their way out of the city.

Only one of the passengers was seriously hurt, R. W. Stickney of Springfield, a traveling freight agent of the Northern Pacific Railway company, with headquarters in Boston. His right shoulder was dislocated and three ribs on his right side were bent. He was taken to the city and treated by Dr. A. S. Boister, after which he was able to go to his home in Springfield.

The steam roller, in charge of William Moore, was working on the highway and slid over the rail in such a way that half the big machine extended across the track. The trolley car, in charge of Motorman Elmer Hood and Conductor Hugh McNecken, both of Leominster, was making a trip from Worcester to Clinton and was running down the hill with the power turned off.

When Policeman Hood discovered the steam roller in his path he applied the air brakes, but the rail was so slippery the wheels failed to hold and the trolley car crashed into the roller with such force that the passengers were thrown from their seats and piled into a mass at the front end of the car. The force of the collision was so great that the cross seats on the right hand side were snapped off and thrown onto the other side of the car. The windows were smashed, the motors wrecked and the wires snapped off. The passengers, after extricating themselves from the tangle, went to the Home farm, where their injuries were attended to, and then they went home.

DURLAND IS HELD

Charged With Being a Hotel Beat

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Kelllogg Durland, friend of Magistrate Joseph Corrigan, sponsor for Li Quang Jung's, otherwise Charles Boston's, pistol permit, magazine writer and alleged friend of King Alfonso of Spain, was held for trial as a hotel beat by Magistrate O'Connor in the West Side court yesterday.

Durland, who has traveled the world over as a special correspondent of several magazines, being arrested in Russia in the revolution of 1906-07 several times as a political spy, was accused by Thomas Carroll, president of the Hotel Hermitage company, with having beaten the hotel out of a board bill of $235. This was not all, according to Mr. Carroll. On July 11 last, according to the complainant, he presented a $400 check drawn on the Hudson Trust company in payment of his bill, but requested a loan of $120 thereon. The check bore the signature of Genevieve Durland, the defendant's wife.

The latter on the telephone disclaimed all knowledge of the transaction, according to Mr. Carroll, and said she had but $16 remaining to her account in the Hudson Trust company. Meanwhile, however, Durland paid $250 to Carroll.

Mrs. Durland since early in the summer has been occupying at Monroe, N. Y., the dwelling she leased from Ferdinand Plimley Barle of Albany fame.

The warrant for Durland's arrest was obtained a week ago and he was arrested last Friday at the Explorers club, in West Twenty-ninth street. The $500 bail required by Magistrate Herman was produced that night, but on Monday was declared forfeited by Magistrate O'Connor when Durland did not appear for a hearing. He was supposed to be in Washington. Yesterday the forfeiture was rescinded when he appeared for a hearing.

Durland, put in no defence yesterday and was held in $250 cash bail for trial.

GERMAN OFFICER

SENDS REPORT ON SITUATION IN HANKOW

BERLIN, October 18.—The only news of the situation at Hankow available here is contained in the laconic messages of Commander Behnke of the German cruiser Lepsius.

The admiral is still in ignorance of the conditions under which Germans were lured and the government that the reported clash between the Germans and a Shanghai mob was not serious as no casualties were reported. The foreign office is without confirmation of the reports of a critical situation at Nanking but the crew and guns of the big German cruiser Gneisenau, which was forced to remain at that city owing to a fall in the waters of the river, will go far in protecting foreigners there.

A telegram from Shanghai reports that there are no indications yet of a wavering in the loyalty of the government troops.

Stovall of Savannah, Ga., responded.

FACTORIES CLOSED

Against the Knights of Labor Cutters

LYNN, Oct. 18.—One addition to the ranks of the local shoe manufacturers who have locked out the Knights of Labor cutters who demanded an eight-hour day was reported today when Cutters assembly was notified that the 25 cutters employed by the Goller Shoe Co. had been refused employment. Nineteen factories have now closed their doors against the Knights of Labor cutters.

At the rooms of the Lynn Shoe Manufacturers association today it was said that the list would be increased greatly by Saturday.

The manufacturers who have instituted a lockout admitted today that they were disappointed because only one firm—the A. F. Smith Co.—of the 9 firms which have an arbitration agreement with the cutters had participated in the lockout. Some of them expressed the opinion that these so-called arbitration shops would declare a lockout when present orders are finished.

It was reported at the cutters' headquarters this forenoon that one of the arbitration shops, that of the Cutter Shoe Co., had advertised for additional cutters, but refused to employ any locked out cutters because of an agreement the company had with the other manufacturers.

In a statement issued this afternoon Horace W. Sawyer, secretary of the Manufacturers association, declared that the lockout of cutters had been declared by 23 firms.

Secretary Sawyer says that 780 cutters have been locked out, but, according to Master Workman Walsh, head of the cutters' assembly, only 500 are out. Secretary Sawyer's statement also announced that the manufacturers had received assurances that other manufacturers would join the lockout movement as soon as they had caught up with orders now on hand.

Mr. Walsh issued a long statement this afternoon. In it he refers to the fact that only 430 of a membership of more than 1500 Knights of Labor cutters were present at the meeting on Sept. 25 when it was voted to demand an eight-hour day. Mr. Walsh says that 430 was a large attendance inasmuch as the number attending an assembly meeting never had exceeded 700. He says that up to the present time the cutters have not deemed it necessary to call for outside assistance in their conflict with the manufacturers but that if it should be necessary to demand a plea for aid will be made to kindred labor organizations. Part of Mr. Walsh's statement was interpreted by some of the manufacturers to mean that a general sympathetic strike might be called.

One Dr. Oskar Nagle recently read a paper before the New York Chemical society on the extraction of gold from sea water. Dr. Nagle perhaps had not heard of the enterprise of one Dr. Jernequin in a project of this kind. He demonstrated that gold could be extracted from sea water if the gold were first added to the water in the shape of dust. What Dr. Nagle's modus operandi might have been is not known for the chemical society gave his proposition no quarter. Perhaps some of the members had been stockholders in the Jernequin scheme by which so many were swindled.

PALPABLE FALSEHOOD EXPOSED

In the discussion of public issues the auditors should take care not to be imposed upon by false statements. This is particularly true on the merits or demerits of the new charter.

Think of the implied imposition, the misrepresentation and falsehood contained in the statement that the money power is behind this charter movement in this city and that the newspapers are paid for what they publish in favor of the new charter. So far as we know the money power is not bothering about the form of charter the city of Lowell shall adopt; but we surmise that if the money power had anything to do with the movement, there would be some evidence of its influence at the counting room of the different newspapers, in the printing offices and in public rallies to boom the charter.

So far as The Sun is concerned it can pronounce the statement that the press is paid for what it prints in favor of the charter as an unmitigated falsehood. This paper published a full copy of the text of the charter at a very moderate figure for the charter committee of sixty, and that with a few paid notices of the meeting at which Dr. Eliot spoke is all the paid matter that has appeared in this paper. We are aware that the committee is short of funds to push the movement, and what we print voluntarily in favor of the charter we print of our own accord, not for the committee of sixty but for the welfare of the city of Lowell, because we believe the new charter will bring a great boom to our city, will improve business and cause new industries to settle here. While we are wrangling at city hall, while our city government is divided against itself we need not expect any satisfactory results. We want to get a new charter and then start a system of government that will bring results such as we see in some of the progressive cities of the west. If one set of men cannot do this under the new charter we can try another and another until we succeed, but one thing is assured that political deadlocks and reckless management will not thrive under the new charter.

It is a charter for all the people, a charter that will give every voter ten times as much political power as he has at present, a charter under which all men will have an equal chance regardless of creed, color or race.

Now as to the attitude of the press on such a movement, the paper that would oppose such a charter would be untrue to the people, untrue to the city and unworthy public confidence. The advancement of the public good is our only motive, and we hope that the citizens of Lowell will show that they are fully as intelligent as those of Haverhill, Lynn, Gloucester, Taunton and other cities that have voluntarily adopted the Des Moines charter.

Now we have plainly shown that the charge that the newspapers are paid for what they print in favor of the charter is untrue. But there are other charges equally groundless emanating from the same source, and among them are these—

That the new charter would throw out of employment citizens of Lowell and bring in foreigners to do the work.

That it would build up a political machine at city hall.

That it would take power away from the people.

That it is not democratic and is intended to benefit some particular class.

That the local corporations are backing it as a means of reducing taxes.

That the present system of government is the best ever devised by man.

These are only a few of the misrepresentations that are circulated against the new charter while the friends of the charter do not claim that it will make our city a paradise or that it will secure the most desirable men right away. The new charter has safeguards against bad men because it assumes that an occasional misfit may get into office. If any such case warrants the recall, that can be applied to oust the official who has proved incompetent or recreant to his duty.

We would, therefore, caution the honest voters of Lowell not to be misled by men who make such unwarranted statements. Better government will benefit every man, woman and child in Lowell. That is the object of this charter and explains why not only every newspaper but every individual citizen should support this charter.

The government of American cities has been the byword of the nations. This movement for a business charter is intended to correct this evil, to stop grafting and every form of corruption and to give American cities clean, honest and progressive government.

SEEN AND HEARD

Again the world's championship baseball series is being played with her Giants and Philadelphia with her Athletics are the contenders. Popular interest in these games is intense. Throughout the vast area contained within the four boundaries of the United States attention last Saturday afternoon was centered on a little plot of land in New York called the Polo grounds. Here were gathered to witness the opening contest some 10,000 spectators, as many as could possibly be jammed within the four walls of the enclosure. Besides these thousands of onlookers, there were attending the game that afternoon several hundred special baseball writers some of whom had traveled to New York from as far distant as the Pacific slope. These chroniclers observed the contest play by play and the results of their observations, the stories of the game, were read that evening in almost every home throughout the country. In those homes and on the streets in every place where men congregate, the principal topic of conversation, of animated conversation, was the New York-Philadelphia series. Why this enthusiasm for baseball is so general among the American people, why this game has become fixed as the national sport, is not difficult of explanation. The admiration of those endowed with strength blended with skill, that happy combination wherein the ancient Greeks excelled always has been an American trait. It follows that a sport in which these qualities, in a highly developed form, are necessary must also be popular. The admiration of these manly traits starts with boyhood and continues to old age.

In the American boy the admiration develops into emulation, with the result that baseball has become his most popular pastime. So popular is it with him that on reaching manhood his enthusiasm diminishes but little. If he does not play the game as a means of beautiful recreation, he at least may be counted upon to enlist in the army of "fans" who spend each Saturday afternoon at the ball grounds. So fascinating is the sport that his interest in it survives even after that period when his hair becomes streaked with gray. The game casts its alluring spell over young and old.

Baseball, it is certain, is honestly played. Honest it is, if for no other cause than that the clubowners, with their millions of dollars invested in the business, would, if countenancing the slightest dishonesty, be following the most short-cut of business policies. They realize that the American public can be imposed upon little more than once.

There are many women who never realize that the love of a real man is for her. It is common to give the credit to men, but some young female heads are so turned by general attention paid to them, that the big love they cannot comprehend and treasure.

The right sort of a girl is always willing to wash the dishes, bring in an armful of wood, and sew on a patch, and the wrong kind of a girl is generally found loitering in a hammock when washday comes. The girl who is willing to do things, and do them cheerfully, can generally find a place in which to put her suitcase any old time.

Often times a man is called smart who has only taken advantage of opportunities when they came up.

A man has got to get into the habit of putting coal on the fire, and cleaning out the ashes. If he doesn't want to do it, it is because he forgets, or—course—hasn't reached the habit.

A great many things sometimes appear quite commonplace to all those who are not in the right spirit. A man has to be doped just right in order to see a golden sunset in a thick fog.

When a man puts on a Prince Albert, who isn't used to that article of wearing apparel, it changes his disposition in spite of himself. And when a fellow wears evening clothes only once in a year or so, see how uncomfortable he is when he finds he can't put his hands in his pockets.

Of course, it is so much nicer to be able to travel and afford it, but a man who cannot travel is a fool. If he doesn't study up and read about the things that are so far away that he hasn't the dollars to get there.

Ever see the girl who runs and grabs her hat when she gets an invitation to wander from the old friend? Watch her, and see where she lands! She has a good time, but she never lies down to anything substantial.

When a woman begins to practice deception, she generally becomes pretty clever, but there is always a time when she forgets to make connections between stated facts—and then she is apt to fall all over herself.

There has been no lack of cases of heroism in the explosion, which destroyed the French battleship Liberie in Toulon harbor, and one of them at least deserves to be placed on record.

It was after the first explosion which filled the holds with poisonous gases. The electric wires were broken and all was in complete darkness below. Chief Engineer Leatin, who had vainly tried to flood the ammunition magazines, tumbled half dazed on deck and reported to Lieut. Garnier that he had done his best but the pumps were not working and it was impossible to flood the holds.

"Try the impossible," was the reply. "The magazines must be flooded."

Leatin touched his cap and said: "I will try again. But you will never see me back alive."

With a firm step he went down below again and shortly afterward the final catastrophe happened.

Rev. Fr. Murphy of Ware on his return from Ireland said: "Since my last trip home everything has changed for the better. The people are more independent, and as soon as Home Rule—for which we are fighting hard—is secured, the Irish people will be the happiest and the most contented people under God's heaven. In the past 10 or 15 years some new industries have sprung up in the country, but it needs some measures of Home Rule to make the country what it should be. No one cares to start any big industry there now under the present existing conditions. The people are as happy and good-natured as ever and the scenery all over the country is perfectly beautiful. No scenery in any other part of the world can compare with it."

THE MURDERED LADY

Miss Arabella Stummins wore her hobble skirt to town. Her figure was quite modern, of a style straight up and down. It was a small community in an unsettled state. The dash that Arabella ent was wonderfully great.

Old Uncle Billy Bingle came a-ridin' down the street. He is the most nearsighted man you'd ever chance to meet.

Which makes the style of cards he plays particularly quaint. Sometimes the pair he bets is there, and then again it ain't.

Miss Arabella stood upon the curbstone, looking sweet. Yet something like a post, so perpendicular.

Old Uncle Billy rode up to rest his head on a wall. An' he hitched his horse to her before she had a chance to yell.

The lady she stompeded, an' the boss he had to go. But, owing to her handicap, her pace was rather slow.

She grabbed his mane, and somehow got aboard an' let him jog.

Bill missed his horse, an' then society was all agog.

That Arabella stole that boss her lady friends all say. Though Bill's too courteous an' polite to see the error, that way.

The men that's courtin' Arabella hint that, like as not.

Bill an' the boss was partners in a big kidnapin' plot.

The city council met an' passed an act perridin' plain. That nobber of the kind henceforward must occur again.

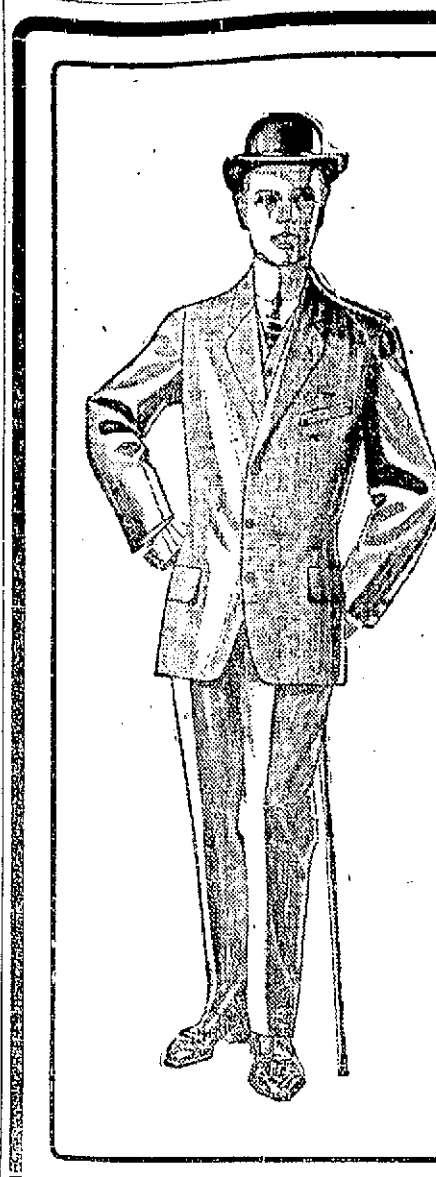

The ladies have a right to be as stylish as they choose. But they oughtn't to be handicapped so that they're sure to lose.

A single hobble skirt, the council says, is much too few. An' all excepted ladies should be dressed with two.

Distributed in such a way they won't be at a loss. If they have to start a foot race or go tourin' on a horse.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Brockton Times: At an election the first week in December the people of Los Angeles, Cal., will be given an opportunity to say whether or not they want a municipal newspaper. The proposal is to conduct a paper which will print local and telegraph news, giving special attention to municipal affairs, print all city notices and derive what revenue it can from general advertising. It is estimated that about $35,000 a year above receipts would be required to maintain such a paper, and the citizens are to be asked if they are willing to contribute $350 a week to its publication. It seems hardly likely that they will.

FORTY CENT BUTTER

Lawrence Sun: Flours of the Chicago Warehousemen's association are published that there are but $3.97,000 pounds of butter in cold storage as against $9,843,000 a year ago. The production of produce dealers of forty-cent butter next winter seems likely to prove correct. This means a tight pinch to many a housekeeper with her back up against the wall of a fixed income.

It is useless for her to expect that such high prices can be attacked at the farmer's end. He is paying two or three times as much for the food which he gives his cows as he was ten to twenty years ago. Furthermore, his bill for fuel help has doubled.

IT COSTS TO BE METROPOLITAN

Salem News: Under the assessments levied upon the various cities and towns which compose the metropolitan district, as it is called, a sum in excess of $5,200,000 will be paid this fall into the state treasury. The assessments are thus divided: For water, $2,333,021; parks and boulevards, $1,110,098; sewers, $931,430; Charles river basin account, $827,589. It is interesting to note some of the levies put upon cities, and these items are therefore selected almost at random: Quincy, $121,223; Malden, $123,770; Lynn, $64,717; Waltham, $42,308.

Taking everything into account, Salem may felicitate herself that she is just removed from the outer line of the metropolitan zone.

A PROPHECY FULFILLED.

Boston Globe: A prophecy made in the democratic state platform a little more than a week ago seems to have come true. Apparently it was more than mere rhetoric in that document, when this warning was given to the voters of the kind of campaign that might be adopted: "It threatens with poverty, panics and industrial ruin those who question its exactions and menace its supremacy. Even now, if need be, there will be shutdowns and wage reductions that the toiler may see his ballot through tearful and hungry eyes."

The fulfillment came last week when the republican candidate for Lieutenant governor informed the wage-earners of Holyoke that he had talked with the head of a certain industrial corporation in that city, who agreed that it was a fair statement that if President Taft had signed the wool bill passed by the last session of congress his company could not have run its mills at a profit if every one of the 3000 employees worked for nothing. There was a threat of poverty and of industrial ruin such as the democratic platform mentioned. The truth of the statement was quickly challenged. Gov. Foss looked into the facts and he declares that the corporation in question in 1908 paid a cash dividend of 40 percent and also 100 percent in stock; that last year it paid 24 percent cash, and that up to July (this year) it had paid 15 percent. In the 35 years that it has been in existence its stock dividends have averaged 60 percent a year, and it is now paying dividends on a capitalization of $2,400,000 at the rate of 24 percent, which is at the rate of 506 percent on its original capitalization.

BRUTALLY BEATEN

Bangor Man Held Up and Robbed

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Two highwaymen held up and brutally beat and robbed Edwin J. Nelson, aged 38, of 70 May street, Bangor, Me., last evening in the shadow of the Ayer building at the corner of Washington and Court streets.

Without warning the two highwaymen grabbed and began beating Nelson, who attempted to defend himself, while he yelled for help. A throng of men and women who were passing assembled about the struggling men and looked at what they supposed was an ordinary street fight.

The two highwaymen dropped the man and fled when somebody shouted that the police were coming. Nelson fell to the sidewalk, bleeding profusely from multiple wounds about the head, face and nose. He was removed to the Relief station, where the physicians bound up his wounds and kept him for the night.

The highwaymen succeeded in obtaining a black leather wallet from him which contained jewels valued at $50 and a diamond stud valued at $50 and a diamond watch chain, set with an opal in the center, valued at $25.

The thieves tore Nelson's pockets apart in their unsuccessful efforts to obtain his money. He had considerable money with him at the time. Nelson is a guest at 12 Causeway street while he is in Boston. The police were sent out to search for the highwaymen.

FOUND CREMATED

Woman Had Been Rejected by Her Husband

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Lying in a clump of blushing bushes, charred almost beyond recognition, the body of Mrs. Marietta E. Schneider was found yesterday afternoon near her husband's hotel, at Cherry and Springfield avenues, Springfield, L. I. Her hair and clothing had been consumed. The police said the woman had committed suicide by setting fire to the bushes and jumping into them.

The woman's act is said to have been caused by the refusal of her husband to take her back. They had been living apart since last Christmas day. Recently he obtained an interlocutory divorce decree, but her attorney, Elmer Ashmead, of Jamaica, had it set aside. The case is still pending.

A month ago Mrs. Schneider attempted suicide at Rockaway Beach by drinking carbolic acid. A magistrate released her when she promised never again to make an attempt upon her life. She said then that she tried to die because, without the companionship of her husband, life was not worth living.

Since the separation Mrs. Schneider has been living with her widowed mother, Mrs. Walter Higley, on Springfield avenue, only a few blocks from her husband's hotel.

A few days ago she obtained a promise from Mrs. Sarah B. Smith, her husband's bookkeeper, to try to effect a reconciliation. Yesterday, when Mrs. Schneider appeared at the hotel Mrs. Smith told her he had declared he would have nothing more to do with her and intended to sell his business and move.

Several hours later two small boys told Mrs. Smith that Mrs. Schneider had been found dead. Beside the body was found a pint flask which had contained kerosene. Detectives Bl-ko, Ennis and White believe Mrs. Schneider poured the contents over herself before jumping into the blazing bushes.

Schneider said he was convinced that she had killed herself, and believed her mind had been unbalanced. The police said there were no indications of foul play.

THE BRIDGEWALKER

Discovered Attempt to Blow Up Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—G. W. Inge, an expert on explosives, employed by the Southern Pacific railroad to investigate the alleged attempt to dynamite the El Capitán bridge, 200 miles from Santa Barbara, over which President Taft's train passed last Monday morning, expressed the opinion today that the 25 sticks of dynamite found beneath the bridge had been placed there before the president's train passed and plans made to blow up the structure.

"It was while the man was adjusting the second charge of dynamite," said Mr. Inge, "that the official bridgeworker, once discovered and fired upon him. The man ran and as it was dark no good description of him could be given. It was not until later in the day that Section Foreman Brown discovered the presence of this charge of 25 sticks of dynamite with the fuse attached. There was not sufficient explosive placed to completely wreck the structure but from what I observed it was clearly the work of an expert."

TURNED ON GAS

MAN THEN TOOK A DOSE OF POISON

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Swallowing a large dose of carbolic acid and then lying down upon his bed in the Hotel Providence in the west end, the gas coming from an opened pipe on the wall, a young man about 20 years of age, believed to be living in Everett, committed suicide sometime between the time he went to his room Monday night and the detection of odor of gas yesterday morning.

Registering under the name of John Bernard, the young man had evidently prepared to end his life sometime before he came to the hotel, for he brought with him, beside the poison, a pair of gas tongs and a long section of gas tubing.

The Probable hotel, which is at 132 Court street, was formerly lighted by gas, and when electricity was installed the piping was removed, a cap being placed over the pipe where it had formerly entered the room.

The dead man took off this cap with the gas piers, attached the rubber tubing and carried the other end of it to the side of the bed.

After drinking the carbolic acid, which was diluted, he put the gas tube in his mouth.

Medical Examiner Walters did everything possible last night to identify the dead man after receiving a rumor that he might be the young man referred to in the letters left by Jennie Serotta, a Roxbury girl who committed suicide last Thursday by gas, because she had been jilted.

Up to a late hour last night there had been no identification of the body, although it was not believed that the suicide had any relationship to the Roxbury one.

A SERIOUS MISHAP

To the Taft Train Narrowly Avoided

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Oct. 18.—A serious mishap to President Taft's train was narrowly averted last night as it was crossing the desert 20 miles west of Kelo. A slipping tire on one of the trailer wheels of the locomotive was discovered by the engineer while a stop was being made for water. The tire was in such condition that it might have been thrown clear of the wheel in taking a curve at high speed. Mr. Taft's car was seventh in the long train. There was a delay of more than half an hour in getting a spare engine to the isolated spot where the dangerous condition was discovered.

AN OPIUM RAID

DRUG PACKAGED AS NUTS AND COLD CREAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Deputy Surveyor Edward Norwood of the customs service went into the Boston cigar store at 256 West Thirty-seventh street yesterday and found a man who gave his name as John Godeff selling Chinese nuts that had been carefully opened and filled with opium. Godeff when arrested said he was merely tending the cigar counter while the man who owned the place was absent. Boston Al was the only name by which Godeff knew the proprietor, and said that he didn't know Al's present whereabouts.

While in the store the Deputy Surveyor found some other things that contained opium. Among them were numbers of small jars once used for cold cream. The jars had been made airtight and filled with the drug. Godeff was taken to the Greenwich street station. He will be arraigned in the federal court today.

JEWELER ROBBED

HE WAS HELD UP BY FOUR MEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Arnold Betts of 55 East 131st street, a jeweler who carries his stock in his pockets and does peripatetic business, told the police of the East 125th street station last night that four men had pounced on him in Park avenue between 10th and 12th streets and had robbed him of watches, diamonds and necklaces valued by him at $3000. He said that he was returning from a Bowery wholesale jewelry house about 7 o'clock when he was held up. One man hit him a heavy blow in the stomach and when he got his wind back another had stuffed a handkerchief in his mouth, while a third sprang away with the jewelry. The fourth man seems to have been the boss.

In their hurry the thieves, so Betts reported, overlooked $750 in cash which he had in his pockets. He gave the police a list of the stolen jewelry and the detectives went out to comb the pawnshops.

THE BLOOM OF YOUTH

(From Eastern Style Reporter)
Even with advancing age it is an easy matter for women to quickly regain that charming smoothness, an delightful tint and youthful bloom to their age-marred or furrowed cheeks. Merely dissolve a small package of mayatone in one-half pint of witch-hazel, then freely apply this lotion to the face, neck and arms, and massage lightly until it disappears.

Continued using will gradually banish wrinkles, sallowness and blotches and give to the skin a youthful clearness and smoothness. The mayatone lotion is soothing to tender skins, and its use discourages the growth of hair or fuz, and removes pimples, blackheads and other facial blemishes. Such delightful results follow the use of the mayatone lotion that artificial aids to beauty are not required.

DOCK COMMISSION

Gov. Foss Picks Hugh Bancroft to Head It

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Governor Foss has picked Hugh Bancroft, the son of President Bancroft of the Boston Elevated railway, a practicing lawyer and editor of the Boston News Bureau, to head the Boston Dock Commission at $15,000 a year.

Because of the youth of Mr. Bancroft there has been a little question in certain quarters, but the governor is reported as being determined. He is willing to allow the nomination, which will have to go to the council to hold over for a week or so, but those acquainted with him say he is absolutely determined on this choice.

John J. Martin, president of the Exchange Trust company, and also a high official in the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange, is also to go on the board, to be one of the $1000 men.

It is also intimated that Henry C. Long, who was a candidate for the principal place, will also be named for a $1000 position, though a side suggestion is that he be made one of the executive officers of the new board.

The announcement of the selection of Hugh Bancroft is certain to cause considerable surprise, for his name is one of the very few which have not been mentioned for the position. Admittedly, Bancroft is the son of the former president of the Boston and Maine railroad, and Timothy E. Byrnes, vice president of the New Haven and Boston & Maine railroads, have been discussed as possibilities. The hitch has been, though, that in most cases the men sought did not care to take on the work, or do it at the salary named.

JAIL SENTENCE

FOR MAN CONVICTED OF STEALING AN AUTO

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Forged letters of recommendation and a forged chauffeur's license came to light in the trial of Daniel N. Malone, 30 years old, of Philadelphia, in the municipal court yesterday, when Judge Murray sentenced him to 18 months in jail for larceny of an automobile.

Judge Murray himself exposed the forgeries. After pleading guilty to stealing the automobile of John E. Evans, proprietor of the Evans house, last night, Malone handed the judge some letters of recommendation.

"If genuine these letters show that you should not be in the dock here on a charge of larceny," said Judge Murray. He then directed the court officer to have Malone write his signature. When this was done Judge Murray compared the signature with those in the letters of recommendation. He announced that the signatures were forgeries.

After examining the defendant's license to operate a automobile in New Jersey, Judge Murray announced: "You have erased another man's name here and you have substituted your own." Malone then broke down and admitted all the signatures to be false.

PROMOTER'S FEE

JAS. H. POST SAYS IT AMOUNTED TO $10,000,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Jas. H. Post, president of the National Sugar Refining company of New Jersey, who engineered the merger of the three sugar refining companies into that concern, was a witness yesterday before Vice-Chancellor Stevens in Newark in the suit brought by preferred stockholders to compel the cancellation of $10,000,000 worth of common stock obtained by Mr. Post for the late Henry O. Havemeyer.

In his cross examination Mr. Post was asked by Richard V. Lindbury, counsel for the complainants, whether he had informed the directors of the new National company about the common stock that was to be issued and who was to get it. Mr. Post replied that he told them that it was to be issued to him for the account of the people he represented. He said that some of the men engaged with him in the organization of the company asked who his associates were.

"I was very careful not to use the name of Mr. Havemeyer," Mr. Post said in answer to another question. Replying to further questions, Mr. Post said that the $10,000,000 of common stock really represented a "promoter's fee."

In answer to another question of Mr. Lindbury as to what had been the consideration for the $10,000,000 of stock, Mr. Post said: "It was a capitalization of the post-

LICENSE BOARD

FINDS THAT LIQUOR DEALER VIOLATED THE LAW

PITCHBURG, Oct. 18.—The license commissioners last night gave a hearing to J. T. Keefe, a wholesale liquor dealer at 361 Main street, on a complaint made by Patrolman Fred H. Estabrook, who charged that a pint of whiskey was sold to Katie Hopponen on Oct. 10 by a clerk in the Keefe store, while Hopponen was under the influence of liquor. Keefe was present at the hearing with counsel.

Patrolman Estabrook testified that Hopponen suggested before he went into the store. When Hopponen came out, the officer said, he placed him under arrest on a charge of drunkenness.

Officer B. H. Clifford, driver of the police ambulance, and Patrolman Valenthe P. Cormier said Hopponen was so much under the influence of liquor that he could not walk alone.

Jereuliah Marceau, a clerk at the store of Keefe, admitted that he sold the pint of whiskey, but denied that Hopponen was drunk when the sale was made. He said that Hopponen gave him the money for the whiskey and that he appeared to be sober. Desire Beaulieu testified that he was in the saloon when the sale was made. He did not consider that Hopponen was drunk.

The commissioners voted unanimously to close the Keefe store for eight days as a punishment for violation of the terms of the license.

WOMAN SAYS THAT DINNER KILLED HER HUSBAND

MOUNT VERNON, Oct. 18.—Alleging that her husband, Charles Stravender Butt of Taunton, died from the effects of eating something poisonous in a dining car of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, Mrs. Dorothy R. Butt has brought two actions against the company for $100,000 each in the supreme court of Westchester county. She sues both as the widow and as the administratrix of her husband's estate.

The case was removed yesterday from the Westchester court to the United States circuit court on the application of the defendants.

Mrs. Butt sets forth in the complaint that her husband on June 16, 1910, was a passenger on a Pennsylvania railroad train from Washington, D. C., to New York city and that while passing through the state of Delaware he had dinner in the dining car. She says that he was taken ill and that he died in New York on the following day.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. George W. Hutchins and Miss Minnie E. Night was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. D. D. street, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Asa Reed Dills. The couple were unattended and after a short wedding trip will reside in Lawrence. No cards.

CONWAY—MAHONEY

Mr. Roland Conway and Miss Katherine Mahoney of North Billerica were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at St. Andrew's church in that village, the ceremony being performed by Rev. E. A. Cornell, O. M. I.

The bride wore a gown of white silk and large picture hat. Miss Annie Mahoney, sister of the bride, who acted as bridesmaid, was attired in a handsome dress of cream colored silk and also wore a picture hat. Mr. Dennis Mahoney, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

As the bridal couple entered the church Lohengrin's wedding march was played by the church organist, Miss Blin Hoar, and as the couple left the church strains of Mendelssohn's bridal chorus were played.

After the ceremony, the newly wedded couple and their relatives repaired to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Mahoney, of Wilson street, where a wedding feast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Conway were the recipients of many beautiful and costly wedding gifts. They departed on an evening train for a honeymoon trip, which will include New York, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other points of interest. They will reside in Boston, where the bridegroom holds a responsible position with the Boston Elevated Railroad company.

FAVORS PAROLE

ATTY-GEN. GOES ON RECORD BEFORE PRISON CONGRESS

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 18.—Attorney-General Wickersham in an address before the American Prison Congress last night advocated the extension of the parole system in American prisons to cover life prisoners and gave a number of statistics gathered since the adoption of the parole system in government prisons. In part Mr. Wickersham said:

"Punishment in some form or other is still necessary to prevent crime. This is especially the case at this time when diverse economic forces are struggling with each other for the mastery in the state and where laws are enacted through the influence of one class or classes to control the action of another class who are unwilling to accept them as rules of action because unconvinced of the wisdom or justice of the legislative policy which they embody.

"Yet a consideration of the nature of social organization will demonstrate the absolute necessity of all classes of society conforming to requirements prescribed by the duly constituted authorities, however wise or unwise those regulations may appear to those whose conduct is sought to be controlled by them."

Continuing, Mr. Wickersham expressed himself in favor of the extension of the parole law to include life prisoners and of leaving to all such the hope, perhaps in the dim distance but yet the hope, of a parole. The

USMC

The United Shoe Machinery Company receives less than 4 1/4 cents per pair of shoes for the use of all the sixty machines exhibited in the Model Shoe Factory at the New England Fair in the manufacture of women's high grade Goodyear Welt Shoes. On Men's Goodyear Welts it receives less than 5 1/4 cents per pair. Goodyear Welts comprise only one-third of all the shoes manufactured in the United States. On the remaining two-thirds, if all its machines were used in their manufacture, the Company would receive less than 1-1-8 cents per pair. This is all the Company receives for the manufacture and use of its machines, for its care and service in keeping the machines in running order and for instruction of operatives.

Visit the Fair in the Mechanics Building, Boston, and learn for yourself the terms upon which the shoe manufacturer enjoys the use of each machine.

A STRANGE COMPACT

Entered Into by Man and His Wife

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Philip Hiehorn, whose beautiful young wife vanished last December coincident with the disappearance of Horace Wylie, made yesterday his first statement concerning the elopement which so deeply stirred society circles in Washington.

Mr. Hiehorn is at his mother's summer home, "Thorn Cliff," in Black Rock, Conn. His four-year-old daughter is with him. They have been there since June in pursuance of a remarkable unwritten agreement, between husband and wife, which provides that they remain apart for six months before deciding on permanent separation or complete reconciliation.

"I have not directly or indirectly communicated with my wife since her return to Washington last spring," said Mr. Hiehorn. "We did not meet then—in fact, I have not seen her since the unhappy event occurred, and she has not communicated with me since last May."

"At the time of her return, I would have agreed to a reconciliation. But the judgment of my mother and my sister, while most kindly towards my wife, was that we should live entirely apart for half a year, in which period we should be able to consider our future relationship with calm deliberation and make our final decision. It was arranged that my wife should remain in the home of her mother, Mrs. Hoyt, at Washington, while I should come here."

"My relatives believed that if Mrs. Hiehorn could forget other influences at the end of that period, and if I felt as I did when she returned, a reconciliation would be wise and successful."

"If my wife has gone away again, it is news to me. But I have had many surprises since last December. I do not know what is happening or what has happened."

"I understood that my wife was with her mother in Washington, but it is possible that they are out of the city. I have heard, indeed, that the Hoyts were somewhere in Massachusetts, but whether or not my wife is with them I cannot say."

"I intend to return to Washington shortly, and take up my duties there once more. I have found relief from sorrow, and I believe I am a stronger man than I was before. But the future I cannot forecast. I do not know how the terrible affair will end."

Mr. Hiehorn shows plainly that he is a man who has been through deep suffering, but who has been leading a secluded life for five months, and it is said, has been preparing to return to Washington within a week or two, ready to rejoin his wife if her decision is the same as his.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The Presbyterian synod in session here today elected Rev. Martin Kneeland, D. D., of Boston as moderator and Rev. J. C. Glover and Rev. Feuss, both of Syracuse, as temporary clerks. This afternoon the delegates will be tendered a reception at the home of Secretary of State for President Lincoln, William E. Seward, General and Mrs. Seward acting as hosts.

STRUCK BY AUTO

BOSTON, Oct. 18.—Stepping in front of an automobile operated by Robert Atkinson, Thomas Kirk was run down and probably fatally injured early today. Kirk was placed under arrest but was later released. Kirk is 45 years old and so far as the police can ascertain is alone in the world and friendless.

Continued

AMERICAN CONSUL

SAYS THAT FIRING WAS BEGUN THIS MORNING

PEKING, Oct. 18.—American Consul General Green telegraphed today from Hankow as follows:

"Firing between the rebels and imperialists aided by the ships began at 7:30 o'clock this morning near the river and the railroad station."

The railroad station is on the north bank of the Han river west of Hankow.

IN CHINA BELIEVED TO BE IN DANGER

TOKIO, Oct. 18.—Despite the assurances given both by the Chinese government and the revolutionary leaders in the Central Chinese provinces that the rights of foreigners would be respected, officers here regard the situation as likely to develop phases alarming to outside nations. The maintenance of a scrupulous impartiality will be very difficult at times and it is certain that any suspicion of interference on the part of foreigners would arouse tremendous indignation among the Chinese.

Some feeling among Japanese has already been noted at Peking where Chinese merchants and financiers have freely asserted that Japan incited the revolution in order to create a crisis which would prevent the American-European loan. In revolutionary circles, on the other hand, reports are being circulated that Japan is aiding the imperial government and this impression has already created an antagonism against Japan in the south and is said to have resulted in the beginning of an anti-Japanese boycott in South China. Still another Chinese rumor which is likely to cause trouble for Americans is to the effect that the United States encouraged the revolution by its insistence upon the hated railroad loan.

AMOY THREATENED

RESIDENTS FEAR THE CITY WILL BE SEIZED

AMOY, China, Oct. 18.—The war scare reached this city today through the receipt by several native commercial organizations of despatches warning them that Amoy was to be seized shortly by the revolutionary leaders. The despatches were unsigned but purported to come from revolutionary headquarters. They contained assurances that there would be no interference with commercial interests. It is generally believed that any successful movement against Amoy must come from within the city as its isolation on a strongly fortified island makes its position apparently impregnable to assault from without.

LIVELY FIGHTING

2,000 IMPERIAL TROOPS AND 10,000 REBELS ENGAGED

HANKOW, Oct. 18.—A general engagement between the revolutionary army and the imperial forces was precipitated on the waterfront here early today by the attempt of Admiral Sah Chen Ping to land a large body of troops for the reinforcement of General Chang Piao. Chang Piao, who, although officially dismissed by the Peking government, still retains his command, was entrenched with several hundred of the native army near the city.

It was just before daybreak that Admiral Sah ordered his cruisers to disembark their soldiers near Chang's position.

The revolutionists on the Wu Chang fortifications immediately detected the movement and opened a hot fire with their artillery. The cruisers and gunboats in the river replied with a rain of shells which diverted the attention of the Wu Chang artillerymen and effectively covered the landing of the troops. Scattered bodies of revolutionists on both sides of the river joined in the fighting and by mid-forenoon it was estimated that 2,000 imperial troops and nearly 10,000 rebels were engaged.

The warships used up a large quantity of ammunition but the effectiveness of their fire was hampered by their fear of endangering the foreign concessions.

REPORTED TO HAVE CAPTURED NANKING AND KIU-KANG

SHANGHAI, Oct. 18.—It is reported here that the rebels have captured both Nanking and Kiu-Kang but official confirmation is lacking. It is stated that there have been a number of secessions from the government troops.

WAS CELEBRATED IN HONG KONG TODAY

HONG KONG, Oct. 18.—The anniversary of the birth of Confucius was celebrated as a general holiday today. The imperial flag was raised over a few shops in the morning but the crowds yelled, "Down with the Manchus" until the flag was lowered.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—The commander of the German cruiser Lepsic at Hankow reports as follows:

"The day and night passed quietly. The rebels withdrew. The British vice-admiral, Sir Alfred L. Winsloe, arrived and assumed as senior officer the command over the marine forces afloat and ashore assembled before Hankow."

The admiralty comments on the fact that the message gives no further information regarding yesterday's official advice, which stated that a collision had occurred between a German landing detachment and a Chinese mob as indicating that the protective measures taken by the Germans were brief and successful and that the incidents were of no great importance.

BATTLESHIP MAINE

Was Destroyed by Mine, Says Expert

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Washington L. Capps, former chief constructor of the navy, has submitted a report to Secretary Meyer tending to corroborate the opinion of the court of inquiry that the battleship Maine was destroyed in Havana harbor by an external explosion. Mr. Capps was sent to Havana by Secretary Meyer to identify certain parts of the wreckage which had been exposed through the lowering of the water in the cofferdam surrounding the Maine.

The testimony before the court of inquiry, which met in 1898 immediately following the destruction of the vessel, was based upon the reports of naval and civilian divers who examined the hull. Mr. Capps, however, had much better opportunity to inspect the wreck. He was especially familiar with the Maine's construction, having superintended her building, and was selected for this reason by Mr. Meyer. His report will probably be made public, and naval officers who have read it say that Mr. Capps confirms the decision of the court of inquiry that the condition of the wreckage leads to the conclusion that the primary explosion was beneath the hull of the Maine at about frame 18.

Since the recent destruction of the French battleship Liberto and the accident on the Jena several years ago there have been many references in the newspapers and technical periodicals suggesting an analogy between the French disasters and the explosion which destroyed the Maine. The Jena and Liberto accidents were probably due to the decomposition and spontaneous combustion of smokeless powder of a type designated as "B" and of old manufacture. A search of the records of the bureau of ordnance, made by order of Secretary Meyer, brought out the fact that no smokeless powder of this kind was in the magazines of the Maine at the time of her destruction.

"It is to be deplored," said Secretary Meyer yesterday, "that parallels have been drawn between these two disasters to French vessels and accidents which unfortunately occurred in the United States navy in which the combustion of powder was the known or alleged cause of the destruction of vessels or loss of life. On February 15, 1898, the U. S. S. Maine was destroyed by an explosion in the harbor of Havana. The cause of the explosion which destroyed her has never been ascertained definitely, but the naval court of inquiry which investigated the circumstances reported that the initial explosion was due to a mine or other cause external to the ship.

"In spite of these facts, statements are frequently made in the press and elsewhere that the destruction of the Maine was or may have been due to spontaneous combustion of smokeless powder on board. That such could not conceivably have been the case is shown by the fact that there was no smokeless powder on board the Maine at the time of the explosion. This fact is a matter of record in the bureau of ordnance, where an accurate record is kept of the distribution of all powder belonging to the navy."
